Five Escape Disaster Off Balboa

SPEND NIGHT IN 18-FOOT SPEEDBOAT

Members of Radio Family Rescued After Search By Harbormaster

Tragedy hovered over a happy vacation party at Balboa Beach last night when a group of five young people, two of them said to be members of a noted radio manufacturing family, were battered throughout the night in their small disabled speedboat.

Reported missing since 11 p. m., the five young people were saved at 3:30 o'clock this morning by Harbormaster T. E. Bouchey, who had staged an all-night search for the missing boat.

The "Billie B," 18-foot speedboat, reported owned by the Gilfillan family, well known as manufacturers of radio sets, marooned the party when the gasoline supply was exhausted, it was reported.

Use Searchlights

After a long search, Bouchey asked aid from owners of the "Magic Isle," sightseeing boat which is equipped with searchlights, but searchers in both craft were unable to find a trace of the missing party.

Finally, after several trips outside the harbor, Bouchey found the party anchored just outside the harbor entrance, where they had spent the night. Because of battery trouble the young folks were unable to signal to passing searchers, who had passed within a short distance of the marooned craft several times.

On Vacation

In the party were Jean Gilfillan, 11; Virginia Gilfillan, 17; Mallin Powell, 13; Francis Cottingham, 18, and Jennings Brown, 21, who piloted the boat. The five young people were vacationing with their parents on Bay Isle, near Balboa.

Miss Cottingham is a Kansas City girl and student at Wellesly school for girls in Massachusetts.

Following the near-tragic boat ride, Harbormaster Bouchey issued a warning to all small boat operators about going outside the harbor without proper equipment. He urged that pilots check their gasoline supply and see that flashlights and other signalling apparatus are carried before venturing out to sea.

FLEET JOINS IN SEARCH

TAMPA, Fla., (AP)—The United States Coast Guard concentrated a large fleet in the Yucatan channel and Caribbean sea today under orders to learn the fate of 22 persons aboard the missing British motorship Nunoca.

The vessel's stores probably were exhausted many days ago, it was believed.

Three ships of the Cuban navy joined nine coast guard boats in the search. The 110-foot Nunoca left Georgetown, chief port of that island, for Tampa July 4 and was due here four or five days later.

The vessel had full provisions for six or seven days and water to last 10 or 11 days.

Aboard the Nunoca were nine Americans, four British subjects and a crew of eight under command of Captain Moses I. Kirkconnell.

Student Slain

GRILL DEATH SUSPECT

Sheriff to 'Crack Open' Mystery of Clevenger Assault Slaying

ASHVILLE, N. C., (AP)—Sheriff Laurence E. Brown hinted today he expected soon to "crack wide open" the mystery slaying of Helen Clevenger, 18-year-old New York University student.

The sheriff said important developments had been uncovered but he refused to discuss the nature of the new information.

He said he probably would question exhaustively Mark Wollner, 35-year-old internationally known concert violinist, today.

Wollner was held for the third day "for investigation."

The sheriff described a pass key to the hotel room where the pretty New York girl was slain as the most important clue toward solution of the case.

The key was found in the lock of the outside of the door to Miss Clevenger's room, while the regular key, blood-stained, was found behind a radiator.

There was no specific charge against Wollner, whose studio is across the street from the fashionable hotel where the girl was criminally attacked, mutilated, and shot to death last Wednesday night.

Break Hacienda Course Record

LA HABRA, (AP)—Two new records for the Hacienda Country club were credited today to Paul Jopes, assistant professional. He toured 36 holes in 66-64—130.

Par is 71. Jopes' 64 and 130 were several strokes under the previous marks.

NEW YORK, (AP)—Democratic Chairman James A. Farley announced today the appointment of Francis B. Sayre, jr., grandson of Woodrow Wilson, as president of the newly-formed Roosevelt First Voters League.

GROWERS END PARLEYS ON STRIKE

Negotiations Called Off Today in Statement By Jack Prizer

Negotiations with striking orange pickers were abruptly called off today by citrus growers.

Displeased with activities of labor leaders who so far have blocked adoption of a wage scale and working agreement, the growers today said they were through dealing with the strikers, and said no more help was needed in harvesting the orange crop. They added that any strikers who wished to work might be employed when jobs are open.

At the same time Mexican leaders vainly kept up their efforts to have the new wage scale approved by pickers. Another meeting of workers and consular officers was set for today. They clung to the hope that Adolfo de la Huerta, former president of Mexico, might step into the breach and arrange a settlement.

Families Fed

Families of the nearly 150 strikers who are held in the county jail on rioting charges were being fed today by relief agencies, as 118 of the prisoners had a preliminary hearing in Fullerton. They were held to answer to superior court.

Last night and today were quiet along the strike front, in contrast with events of the week-end, which saw one picker stabbed, another beaten seriously, and a home stoned.

"A shortage of agitators" was reported today from Delano, vegetable center in the San Joaquin valley, where a pickers' strike was scheduled for yesterday. The strike was postponed, it was said, because most of the available militant union leaders were in Orange county.

To Face Count

Tomorrow three asserted strike leaders will face Judge H. I. Spence in Fullerton jusice court on vagrancy charges. They are Fred West, Joe Espinoza, and William Velarde, all out on bail. Velarde, speaking continually to Mexican meetings, is reported to have forestalled all attempts at a

RAISE BUDGET ON WELFARE

Estimated welfare expenditures in Orange county for the current year will be practically double those of last year, it was disclosed today when Byron Curry, county welfare director, filed his budget request with the county auditor.

It lists total estimated expenditures of $639,000, as compared with a budget of $400,000 and expenditures of $320,000 last year. Actual increase in the cost to Orange county, however, will be about $15,000.

Children's Aid

Total estimated share of the county was $265,126. Last year the county's portion was about $250,000. An increase of $33,000 over previous estimates for the county cost was brought about when the federal government accepted the California plan of children's aid.

Under the plan the county provides $33,000 and the state and federal governments each contribute a like amount for orphans and other children needing aid.

Items Listed

Estimates included in the budget were $100,000 from the county and $300,000 state and federal funds for aged; $33,000 county and $66,000 state and federal children's aid; $4000 county and $8000 state and federal blind aid, and the following county items: burials, $4500; transportation, $5000; merchandising accounts, $41,000; administrative overhead, 54,100; rent, $100,000, and utilities, $1800.

Long Beach Pair Said Embezzlers

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—George J. Sullivan and L. E. Sullivan, Long Beach merchants, were held in $10,000 bond today, pending hearing Aug. 5 on a federal complaint seeking their removal to San Francisco on charges of aiding George F. Byrne of the Pacific National Bank in the misapplication of $2400.

County Heirs Will Get Half Million

Insurance benefits enriched Orange county by more than $350,000 during the past year. Nearly $50,000 of this sum came to Santa Ana. Tustin beneficiaries received $105,000. In Anaheim $122,000 was distributed. Fullerton residents got $95,000. Those are conservative figures made public today. According to the National Underwriter, weekly insurance newspaper, county residents probably received a figure much higher than this estimate, as many policy holders were probably insured with companies not reporting claim settlements. The figure will probably pass the $500,000 mark, it was estimated.

Big Tusin Payment

This was Orange county's share of more than $140,000,000 paid to beneficiaries in California during 1935, it was reported. The huge sum represents an average payment of $22.80 for each citizen and is 40 per cent larger than WPA's expenditure of $100,866,000 in California last year, according to insurance figures.

The county's largest individual payment was to a Tustin resident, whose name was not released by insurance authorities. The payment totaled $53,000. Tustin also had the second largest sum, $30,000, in which the policy holder also was not named.

Will Rogers

The largest individual payment made in the state was for $670,783 on the life of John G. Treanor of Los Angeles. Other large payments included Will Rogers, noted motion picture humorist, who died in an airplane crash in Alaska, $532,500; John J. McCarthy, Pasadena, $530,000 and Clayton E. Wheeler, Los Angeles, $212,000.

Dr. Townsend Cited For Contempt of Court in East Cleveland

CLEVELAND. (AP)—Dr. Francis E. Townsend who walked out of a deposition hearing on the Townsend plan today, a few hours later was stopped in East Cleveland by a deputy sheriff on a citation for contempt of court and returned to Cleveland.

Benjamin F. Sacharow, attorney conducting the hearing, said Dr. Townsend was leaving the city and that a chase was necessary to stop the auto.

The citation for contempt of court was issued by Emil Sovish, a notary public, on Sacharow's request.

The citation was used as a basis

MERCURY AIMS FOR RECORD

"Eight down," Old Sol remarked to himself this morning, as he picked up his round, golden ball at 7 a. m. and set off from the 80 degree mark to see how many more degrees and days he could go in his present game of embarrassing Santa Ana boosters with "unusual" weather.

By 12:15 p. m. he had passed 94 degrees, well on his way to gaining more boos from sweltering Santa Anans as he tried to cross again the goal line of 101 degrees, reached last Thursday.

Yesterday he bounded over the 97-degree marker at 5 p. m. before taking time out and retreating during the night to 70 degrees, at 3:45 a. m.

In Los Angeles, L. H. Daingerfield, weather bureau chief, reported that if the present torridity continues today and tomorrow, it will surpass a previous record for that city, established when the mercury rose above the 90-degree mark for seven consecutive days.

Eight down! How many more to go?

HEAT RISING IN MIDWEST

Drought Belt Hit Again As Promise of Relief Fails; Fires Rage

CHICAGO, (AP)—Temperatures rose over most of the corn belt today with cessation of showers which broke the heat wave and to an extent loosened the grip of the drought.

Forecaster J. R. Lloyd predicted no rain of consequence today or tomorrow in the drought area.

Forest fires blazed in Montana, upper Michigan and in Canada.

A wind and rain storm early today cut a path through Fort Worth and Dallas, Tex., causing damage estimated at $100,000 to the Texas Centennial Exposition at Dallas. Hail accompanied the storm in many sections.

Additional deaths in Nebraska and Oklahoma, where the heat continued unabated, boosted the nation's total since July 1 to at least 4576.

Scattered rains brought some relief to parts of Colorado, Wyoming and Western Nebraska, where temperatures ranged in the nineties yesterday while states to the East enjoyed a respite from the heat.

Lloyd predicted temperatures close to the 100 mark for today.

East of the Mississippi most of the nation enjoyed moderate temperatures, but the forecast for tonight and tomorrow was for warmer weather except in Southern Indiana and Southern Illinois. West of the river rising temperatures were to be general tomorrow except in Southern Missouri, North Dakota, Western South Dakota and Northwest Minnesota.

Forest fires raged in Montana, where airplanes and portable radios were pressed into service to aid nearly a thousand men battling three blazes in the Lewis and Clark national forest.

Fire fighters in upper Michigan had under temporary control a conflagration that isolated 100 men and women in a logging camp near Newberry.

POLLY MAY NOT SUE SPOUSE

BEVERLY HILLS. (AP)—Polly Moran, shrill-voiced film comedienne, is not so sure, after all, that she will divorce her husband, Martin Malone.

Malone, attorney and real estate man, awaits preliminary hearing July 29 on a charge of assaulting Miss Moran with a deadly weapon.

"He's really a good fellow at heart," said Miss Moran on her return from a yacht trip. "If a couple of other men hadn't plied him with drink, as the saying goes, things probably would have remained lovely at our little home."

Al Smith Mum On Alf Landon

NEW YORK. (AP) — Alfred E. Smith said today he conferred yesterday with John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee, but he refused to comment upon a published report that he told Hamilton he would not campaign for Gov. Alf M. Landon.

"All I've got to say is," Smith said, "is that I met Hamilton yesterday. Further than that I haven't got anything to say about it."

F.D.R.'S SPORT IS SPOILED

ABOARD SCHOONER LIBERTY OFF CAPE NEGRO ISLAND, N. S. (AP)—President Roosevelt put a week of vacation cruising under canvas behind him today and headed back to the Bay of Fundy with Yarmouth on the southwest coast of Nova Scotia a tentative first stop.

The 35-mile run depended largely on the weather. A soupy fog delayed the Sewanna yesterday, causing the President to put back into Shelburne Harbor, 15 miles north of here, after a morning attempt to slip into the Atlantic for some deep sea fishing.

The President was anxious to try his hand at the larger fish when the Bay of Fundy is reached.

The Sewanna is due at Campobello Island, N. D., terminal of the two weeks' cruise, July 28.

Barcelona Bombed As Thousands Die Throughout Spain

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press)

Thousands of Spanish insurgents, striking in the wake of a machine gun attack by low-flying airplanes, surged over the Basque provinces of Navarre and Guipuzcoa Tuesday night (Spanish time) to wrest northern control from loyal Leftist forces.

The insurgents poured into San Sebastan, site of the United States summer embassy, after planes had raked the streets with machine gun fire, and after many had fallen in fighting outside the city. The popular front militia withdrew to a mountain apparently intending to shell San Sebastan, as the rebels poured in.

Civil governors of the two provinces fled into France and the insurgents, declaring martial law, assumed complete power.

Meanwhile, French correspondents reaching Bordeaux from Spain, said the northern rebel army had reached a point only 35 miles from Madrid.

Frontier Fighting

Armed masses of peasants and workers, concentrated in five marching columns, thrust toward rebel strongholders while thousands of civilian militiamen formed a steel circle around Madrid.

In a sharp clash between Pamplona rebels and government forces near the French frontier, 24 Spanish Carabineros and an undetermined number of rightists were reported slain.

Throughout the country, the leftist government declared peasants and workers were flocking to aid federal fighters.

The five days of warfare in Spanish Morocco, where the uprising started in Melilla, and on the Spanish mainland today engulfed naval detachments.

TELLS CAUSE OF REVOLT

Restoration of Monarchy Not Sought in Spain, Say Leaders

By the Associated Press

What is the revolt in Spain and Morocco about?

Gen. Francisco Franco, the leader of the rebellion, was quoted as saying in Ceuta, Spanish Morocco, that his purpose was to save Western Europe "from the menace of Russian Communism."

The rebels declare also they want to "save Spain" with a "glorious and patriotic army" and that their movement is one of "restoration."

King's Position

Former King Alfonso says he does not regard the movement as directed as restoration of the throne. All he wants, he declares, is a peaceful rightist government in Spain which will have the army support.

Spanish sources in France said the revolution was not aimed at restoration of the Bourbon monarchy but, rather, was intended to re-establish a Fascist military dictatorship such as the late Gen. Primo de Rivera headed for six years.

National Movement

"The Monarchists and Republicans are fighting together against the leftist regime," said the former monarch, reached at the Metternich Castle in Koenigswart.

"The present revolutionary movement in Spain is not a fight of Monarchists or of Republicans —for or against restoration. It is a national movement."

UNION TRIAL QUESTIONED

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Headed by John L. Lewis, representatives of unions including one-third of the American Federation of Labor's membership assembled today to decide what to do about an "invitation" to stand trial on charges of "insurrection."

John P. Frey, veteran president of the Federation's metal trades department, brought the charges before the A. F. of L. executive council after the 12 unions in Lewis' committee for industrial organization announced their intention to organize steel, automobiles and rubber without regard for craft lines.

Frey maintained this policy violated federation law, and that even the establishment of the committee constituted rebellion.

The council then "invited and requested" the 12 unions to send representatives to a hearing Aug. 3.

Lewis was represented today as feeling that the whole proceeding —with a suspension threat in the background—was illegal. He has been advised by council that the federation convention alone can try and suspend member unions.

BARRYMORE HURLS ROCKS

Elaine Still Awaits Diamond

HOLLYWOOD, (AP)—Elaine Barrie's dream of an 8½ carat diamond on her engagement finger was jarred today by a gruff blast from John Barrymore, 55, and frank.

"I never was engaged to her," quoth the gray-haired thespian of his 21-year-old protege.

"A man can't get along with a dame like that. We're not going to be married."

Perhaps he was thinking of the day, many months ago, when dark-haired Elaine hurled the rock-sized Barrymore diamond at him in anger at her New York apartment.

But in the Barrie domicile in Hollywood, a few miles removed from Barrymore's estate, Elaine had ideas of her own today and her luminous brown eyes were alight.

"I'm just about the happiest person," she said in dulcet tones.

"The diamond ring and a golden brocade mardarin coat are to be my very own.

"I became 21 last week, and according to an agreement, they are being sent by the Chase National bank of New York to the First National bank of Beverly Hills, and then they'll be given to me."

TRIGGERMAN KILLS FOR THRILL

Leader in Black Legion Admits Murdering of Negro in May

DETROIT, (AP)—Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea announced today that Dayton Dean, confessed Black Legion "triggerman" in the slaying May 12 of Charles A. Poole, had told of a new killing in which members of the terrorist organization shot a negro to death "just for the hell of it" May 25, 1935, near Pinckney, Mich.

The victim, Dean said, was Silas Coleman, 43, a world war veteran. He was lured to a desolate spot on the pretext he was to collect wages due him, Dean told McCrea, and shot down for the entertainment of a Black Legion drinking party.

McCrea said he would ask warrants today charging five men with kidnaping Coleman from his home here.

The men Dean accused of participating in the slaying are Harvey Davis, Jack Bannerman, and Ervin D. Lee, who are held for trial for the Poole slaying; Charles Rouse, awaiting trial as an accessory after the fact in the Poole case, and James Roy Lorence, who was released after questioning in the Poole slaying.

In a formal statement to McCrea, Dean said Coleman was killed because one of Dean's superiors in the Black Legion said he wanted to "see what it feels like" to shoot a negro.

Four members of the Black Legion and their wives were spending a week-end at a cottage near Rush lake, in Livingston county, and the slaying was arranged to furnish "a little excitement" for the men in the party, Dean related.

The Black Legion members, he said, induced the negro to accompany them, led him into an isolated section of Marshland, and opened fire. Wounded by one bullet, Coleman fled in terror, he said, but the terrorists tracked him down and emptied their guns into his body.

Coleman's body was found by a fisherman. It had been pierced by 18 bullets and was propped against a pole in the marsh.

BUILDERS HOLD PARK PICNIC

With 115 members of the Orange county builders' exchange and their friends and families in attendance, the exchange's annual picnic and barbecue was held Saturday at Anaheim city park.

A barbecued steak dinner was served at 6 p. m., with George Young in charge of the steaks and Arnon Stovall managing chili beans. Franklyn E. Smith, secretary-manager, directed contests and games.

Winners in the various events were Maurice Young, Elaine Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene R. Hitt, Virgil Kisner, Miss Dorothy Haynes, Thermon Means, Mrs. I. W. MacFarlane, Goerge Barrows, Mrs. Harkness, Lee Thoman, Miss Bassett, Mrs. Elmer Christensen, Mr. and Mrs. Allison Honer.

Keeping His Nose to the Grindstone

NAB SPOUSE OF S. A. BRIDE

Last Saturday Marie Theresa Corley, 42, was a blushing bride in Santa Ana.

Today she was a lonesome bride. Her husband, Joseph Matthews, 33-year-old Hollywood chemist, was being held by federal officers who charge he is the key to an elaborate Hollywood counterfeiting ring.

It was the marriage certificate which trapped him.

Police and U. S. secret service agents last night confiscated an elaborate counterfeiting plant in a Hollywood hotel, where the new Mrs. Matthews was a telephone operator. The couple were arrested in San Diego, where they were honeymooning. The wife is not being held.

From evidence obtained in the apartment, officers found handwriting samples and fingerprints. Handwriting on the marriage certificate signed here led to the capture in San Diego.

Several thousand dollars' worth of special cameras, a chemical laboratory, and other elaborate equipment were confiscated.

goza and Toledo while in Madrid comparative quiet prevailed after loyalists put down a second but short lived uprising.

It was indicated the rebels held complete control of Spanish Morocco and partial power in La Linea, Algeciras, Cadiz, Granada, Malaga, Cartagena, Barcelona and other points, although government columns and aircraft harassed the defenders.

Bitter conflict between rebel soldiers and loyal government forces in Barcelona left at least 300 dead, reports reaching the border said today.

After government planes bombarded the principal city of northeastern Spain Sunday night, dispatches Monday said the combat persisted with many buildings afire.

The rebels, who attempted to seize power Sunday, were said to have been subjected to an aerial bombardment of more than 200 projectiles, while Socialists and Communists fought them on the ground.

Planes Halted

Clouds of smoke billowed over the city from half a hundred fires. Other structures were burned in the continuing conflict, but the aerial attack at length was halted.

The ground fighting was reported concentrated about government posts where insurgent soldiers had established headquarters.

The leftists were believed pressing their efforts to dislodge the rebels completely after the government plane barrage.

Most churches and convents suffered from the aerial fire but the cathedral was spared.

Wireless reports from French Morocco stated today Spanish government ships had resumed their bombardment of Ceuta.

Sailors in command of the loyal fleet at Tangier insisted on shelling only the forts held by rebels, and not the town.

A report from American Consul William W. Corcoran at Vigo, Spain, at noon today, Spanish time, said that civil war was rife and that the death toll was increasing hourly.

Americans Safe

His message was telegraphed through the American embassy at London.

He said members of the consulate staff and their families were safe, that the consulate was functioning and did not need help and that no American casualties had been reported. Two British cruisers were standing by ready to take on British citizens, Corcoran said.

Three-thousand armed workmen were reported in the hills near Vigo defying the military. It was assumed the military consisted of rebel troops but this was not made clear.

Corcoran said that yesterday afternoon there was fighting in front of the American consulate during which troops fired upon crowds of workers, killing 30 and seriously wounding scores of persons.

Battle at Irun

Spanish popular front leaders reported today their forces were fighting advance troops from a column of rebels at Vera, 12 miles from Irun.

Leftist automobiles, flying red flags, were bringing back wounded.

The popular front leaders said they had disarmed 65 rebels and imprisoned them in an iron foundry at Vera. They blew up a bridge at Endarlaza.

All able-bodied citizens, using whatever weapons they could find, assembled to defend border towns.

Leaders of the peasant-worker army said they were calling on all men of the north border countryside to fight against the 4000 army rebels.

About 1000 loyal members of the popular front gathered at once in Irun, while many hundred others rallied in nearby towns.

The rebels advancing through the mountains were well armed as compared to the defenders.

settlement, urging workers to hold out for union recognition, which growers have refused.

Sheriff's officers today were investigating an attack Saturday night on Pete Hernandez, La Habra, who lies in a serious condition in a Whittier hospital from a beating assertedly given him by three men who forced him into their car, clubbed him senseless, then threw him out into the road just across the county line.

Growers Statement

Placentia's city council, object of a dyanmite threat last week, today had adopted an anti-picketing ordinance as protection from loitering strikers.

The growers statement specifically pointed to Velarde and Espinoza as responsible for blocking the settlement. The statement, signed by J. A. Prizer, president of the growers committee, follows:

"The growers' committee, representing all shipping organizations in the county, has definitely decided to call off present negotiations looking toward the settlement of the strike of orange pickers at this time. This decision was brought about through the trend of events that have taken place since the Hon. Adolfo de la Huerta, inspector general of consuls for the Mexican government, requested that the growers submit to him the basis upon which Mexican pickers would be re-employed.

"Inasmuch as the strike was called by outside agitators not in any way connected with the picking of oranges in an endeavor to organize a pickers' union, which would be controlled by this some group, growers have consistently taken the stand that no such union would be recognized. Mr. de la Huerta's representative, Mr. Ernesto Romero, definitely stated that there would be no necessity of recognizing any such union.

Who Is Leader?

"However, since the letter was transmitted to Mr. de la Huerta stating growers were prepared to re-employ Mexicans who had left work, on the same basis on which they were paying their present employes, William Velarde, Espinoza and others have persistently appeared in the picture endeavoring to block all negotiations, and succeeded in splitting the Mexican ranks to such an extent that it is now uncertain as to who, if anybody, represents the mass of the Mexican pickers.

"Publicity, which has misrepresented the growers' stand in this matter, has been given out. Statements that growers were dealing with the unions and were seeking a settlement have appeared in the press. There are more men at work in the county today picking oranges than there were at the time the strike was called. Most houses are picking ahead of their prorate and storing fruit in the pre-coolers, so there would seem to be no need to deal at any time with the so-called striking element.

"All the strikers' places have been filled by other workmen who are anxious to work at the wages and under the conditions provided in Orange county. The wage scale is high and entirely satisfactory to these men, who have withstood the intimidation and threats made against them personally by a group whose only ambition is to cause social unrest, encourage bloodshed, and trouble.

"Had this element been driven out by the Mexican workers in the beginning, their minor complaints could have been easily taken care of and the wage scale adjusted. The wage scale was adjusted last year from 5½ cents, up to as high as 10 cents at the latter end of the season, without any outside interference. The same would have been done this year as the season advanced and picking conditions justified it.

Tells Problems

"The stand of the growers' committee is that any of the workers who wish to return to work on the same basis as shippers are now paying their help, will be reemployed as jobs are open.

"The growers appreciate the difficulty of keeping the public fully informed upon all phases of such a situation as has developed in Orange county, where outside agitators are seeking by every means to confuse an issue and turn every event to their own advantage, incite bloodshed and rioting, and attempt to place the blame for the same upon the growers; while on the other side of the question appear some 40 shipping organizations with their different boards of directors and business managements, attempting to carry on their operations, and harvest the citrus crop.

"The growers ask only that no individual or group draw any conclusions regarding this situation without having full information upon all sides of the question. For the past two weeks, representatives of the growers groups have made a sincere effort to bring this strike situation, with its violence and disorders, to a close through the good offices of the Honorable de la Huerta; and the growers sincerely regret that Mr. de la Huerta has been unable to get his nationals together upon a reasonable and clear basis of understanding."

SCHOOL COST EXPLAINED

Orange county schools are different from many in California, which are faced with increases of more than the allowed 5 per cent in annual budgets, due to partially completed school buildings, County School Superintendent Ray Adkinson said today.

This announcement followed a report by the state board of equalization members that many districts have a large number of "half-finished white elephants" on their hands because federal grants "encourage elaborate building programs."

Two county districts, Cypress and Loara, both near Anaheim, have asked to increase their budgets higher than the 5 per cent limitation because of a rise in prices for materials since estimates were obtained for their structures, Adkinson said. Both districts would have voted more bonds if the raise in prices could have been foreseen, he added.

At Cypress the district voted an issue totalling about $30,000 and is now asking to exceed the limitation by about $2200 to complete the $38,000 plant there. A new wing is being constructed on the present building, and demolition of other portions is also being financed by the issue.

Loara district voters approved an $18,000 bond issue for their share of a new $25,000 structure and the board now is asking an increase of $9743 to complete the building program, Adkinson declared.

Board of equalization members claimed that projects cost more than anticipated because the government bore only a small part of the actual expense and because of necessity of using "inexperienced" WPA labor.

COMPENSATION COSTS DROP

Even including $7,227.79 paid to county hospital nurses who contracted infantile paralysis nearly a year ago, cost of the county's own compensation department was less in the fiscal year just closed than the cost the previous year under the state compensation insurance fund.

So reported Dr. F. W. Slabaugh, county purchasing agent, today to the board of supervisors. He reported a total of $10,017.31 in claims paid, of which the nurses' expense was the largest. Cost the previous year was about $14,000, but in normal times without the WPA and similar projects in operation costs averaged $3500 per year, Dr. Slabaugh reported.

GIBSON TO LEAD LIONS GROUP

Succeeding Homer Chaney as president of the Lions county council, John Gibson, Laguna, was installed as leader at council meeting last night in the Garden Grove Legion hall.

J. W. Crill, president of the Garden Grove club, installed Gibson; Ed Peterkin, Brea, vice-president; and Clyde Lackey, Laguna, secretary and treasurer.

New members inducted included Emil Wagner, George Raymer, Paul Keller, Wallace Craney and Ivie Stein, Santa Ana; and Russell Caldwell, Orange. Charles Peters, Fullerton junior college student, gave three dialect readings.

APPRAISERS EMPLOYED

Over the objections of Supervisor N. E. West of Laguna Beach, the board of supervisors today hired G. F. Meredith of Claremont and James N. Tate of Modesto as appraisers for the federal $13,000,000 water conservation and flood control project on the Santa Ana river.

Tate, Meredith and W. P. Stanton of Visalia, who was hired last week, also over West's protest, were sent here by the Federal Land bank at the request of the board of supervisors. Their employment was made effective as of yesterday. They are to be paid $15 per day plus expenses.

"Before we take action," objected Supervisor West, "we should ask them to submit in writing their credentials and qualifications not only as appraisers, but as expert witnesses in condemnation actions.

West voted "no" when the board voted to hire the appraisers without the questioning.

'KING' TO HELP STRIKERS

"The King" has been writing letters to the board of supervisors and other county officials intimating divine retribution unless they come to the aid of citrus strikers, is known, Sheriff Logan Jackson told the board of supervisors today.

He did not, however, disclose the name of the writer of cryptic letters.

Under an address of "Camp Hebron, Inner Court of the King," the mysterious correspondent mailed a letter from Los Alamitos. It was received by the board of supervisors this morning.

Among other things, "The King" accused the supervisors of persecuting the working class and "buy the press." He said that if the strikers now in jail are released he will not bring divine vengeance.

The letter was signed with a cryptic seal which includes a circle, a triangle and the word "God" balanced on the letter "A."

CONTINUE TRIAL

Preliminary hearing of W. K. Murphy and David O. Pierson on grand theft charges was continued until July 29 this morning in justice court. The two are charged with swindling George S. Ward and R. Pasma out of a total of $1500 through manipulation of checks.

Shriners Back From Convention

Back from Seattle, where the Shrine convention was held last week, came 10 local Shriners yesterday.

In the party were Carl Mock, Lynn Ostrander, Fred Story, Robert Brown, Maurice Phillips, William Graves, Dick Haster, Santa Ana; Thomas and Robert Robinson, Orange; Walter Wray, Tustin; and Jess Payne, a visiting Shriner from Texas.

ASK AID FOR LIGHT FETE

Led by Joseph A. Beek, Balboa yachting and civic leader and secretary of the state senate, Newport and Balboa today asked the county supervisors to give funds for extra harbor service during the yachting regatta and Tournament of Lights to be held in the harbor in August. Action was postponed one week.

Beek announced that the Southern California Yachting association regatta, held in the local harbor in 1922, 1926 and 1930, is to be held this year on Aug. 3. Tournament of Lights, an annual event, will be Aug. 15.

He said the harbor communities are unable to provide additional fire boats, tow boats, life boats, garbage collection boats and similar service which will be required. The United States lighthouse service is placing markers in the ocean course, and the coast guard is patroling the course, he reported. Newport city council appropriated $1000 this week, and the communities and yachting associations will raise about $10,000, Beek reported.

PEST DAMAGE IS 8 MILLION

Bugs eat two billion dollars worth of agricultural products in the United States every year, the United States department of agriculture estimates. To the sum must be added the huge cost of pest control.

R. S. Woglum, in charge of the California Fruit Growers exchange bureau of pest control, estimated that the California citrus industry bears $4,000,000 of the damage figure and spends another $4,000,000 for pest control.

The boll weevil damages cotton to the extent of $164,000,000, and the corn ear worm is rated at $104,000,000.

CITY ACCEPTS PARK DEED

A deed from Evan and Emily Jones for the Santa Ana Auto camp property, purchased by the city of Santa Ana for $11,000, was accepted by the city council last night over the "no" vote of Councilman Joseph P. Smith, who opposed the purchase when it was voted two weeks ago.

Also accepted was an easment from Mr. and Mrs. Jones over a section of Santiago creek bed immediately west of Main street across from the auto camp to allow straightening of the creek bed. Mr. and Mrs. Jones, it was disclosed, have purchased property there to re-establish a camp ground.

Purchase of the present camp was to provide an entrance to Santiago creek park. Councilman Smith last night demanded that the councilmen commit themselves on future plans for further park development in the creek bed, but got no definite statement.

Several other deeds were accepted by the council, among them deeds from Charles Humphrey and the First Federal Savings and Loan association for rights of way used in widening South Main street. Smith, who opposed doing the work before acquiring deeds, and has since objected to accepting deeds one at a time, voted "no."

A deed from Rose Maurer for a five-foot strip for a storm drain along West Seventeenth street was accepted without comment.

CHANGE IN BUS LINE ASKED

Stating that his bus lines in Santa Ana showed a net loss of $920.29 in the past seven months, and that most of the loss is due to the North Ross street line, C. H. Eckles last night asked permission of the city council to discontinue the North Ross line and start a new run in the east end of the city.

His request was referred to a standing committee on taxis and buses.

Eckles proposed a route to start at Fourth and Main, continue east on Fourth to Wright street, south to First, west to Spurgeon, north to Fourth, and west to the starting point. It would be placed in operation the day after the Ross street line was abandoned, he said.

The bus owner quoted costs of $8,043.17, collection of $6,680.38 in fares, and $442.40 advertising receipts.

REDUCE RENT ON USE OF SEWER

Waste Water Concern Is Given Saving of $300 Per Month

Rental of the Waste Water Disposal company of Santa Fe Springs for use of the joint outfall sewer will be reduced from $700 per month to $400 per month under an agreement signed last night by Mayor Fred C. Rowland and City Clerk E. L. Vegely under authorization of the council.

Also granted is permission for the disposal company to discharge more than 40 miners inches of water into the sewer in a day, provided its monthly average is not more than 40 inches per day. Previously the company discharged as much as 80 miners inches at a time but was limited to 40 inches by the agreement, it was reported.

Last night's action of the council was taken after it was shown that all other cities and sanitary districts in the joint outfall sewer district had signed. Tentative approval, subject to acceptance of the other bodies, was voted a month ago.

Water Disposal company drains off water from oil wells after it has been freed of oil by settling in basins. The water, coming from underground oil structures, is salty, and is carried to the ocean to avoid contaminating irrigation and domestic water supplies. The salt content, it is said, is not injurious to sewer lines.

The company has contended that it could construct its own line to Seal Beach at a cost of less than $700 per month.

FARM PRICES IN JUNE RISE

Farm products prices in June showed a steady gain over prices of a year ago, but were far short of the 1925-29 pre-depression level, according to the monthly report of the division of agricultural economics of the University of California. The report was received here today by the county farm advisor's office.

Oranges increased from $1.30 to $2 per box, and lemons from $1.20 to $3.95. Milk, milk fat, and butter increased, but eggs dropped from 24 to 21 cents a dozen.

Potatoes were quoted at $1.80 per bushel as compared with 50 cents per bushel a year ago. General price average of all products covered was 105 per cent of the June, 1911-15, average, but only 69 per cent of the 1925-28 average.

Meat animals gained in the year, with the exception of beef cattle, which dropped from $7.20 to $6.10 per hundredweight. Barley rose from 35 to 38 cents per bushel, but wheat, oats, corn and beans lost ground.

European Plane Service Near

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—Transatlantic plane service between Paris and the United States will be a reality within 18 months, a touring group of French air enthusiasts said on a visit here. Colonel Lecointe said a six-engine Latecoere flying boat, capable of traveling 200 miles an hour and carrying 20 passengers is being constructed for the transoceanic service.

FAMILY SCRAPS ABOUND IN POLITICAL SCENE

By BESS FURMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON.—It's a free country—and freely do the first families of politics take opposite sides of the fence.

Most famous divided clan is, of course, the Roosevelts—the T. R.'s perched high on the head of the G. O. P. elephant; the F. D. R.'s guilding the Democratic donkey.

Then there are the Lehmans. New York's Governor Herbert is a sturdy Democratic campaigner, as is his niece, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., now vested with a new title: "first cabinet wife to a campaign."

But across the fence there's Herbert's first cousin, Robert Lehman, banker, taking the keenest interest in the Landon cause. To complicate it further, his mother-in-law happens to be Madame Minister Ruth Bryan Owen, who'll probably be carrying the Roosevelt battle close to the Landon camp in her old home state, Nebraska, where her father won his Democratic fame. Robert Lehman and Mrs. Owen are tremendously devoted to each other just the same.

The Ganns—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett—are a case in point. That ardent Kansan, sister of the late Charles Curtis, led a rousing rally for Landon at a Republican ladies' "horse and buggy" party held here recently.

Her husband who has written learned treatises on the tariff from anything but a Republican angle, and who served as an assistant attorney general under Woodrow Wilson, quietly continues his Democratic way, though he sometimes good- naturedly helps his wife think up a good hot Republican argument.

Pro-new deal and anti-new deal, the Filenes cut quite a figure. Able, handsome Catherine Felene Shouse makes joint cause with her husband, executive secretary of the American Liberty League. Her uncle, Edward A. Filene, however, writes articles championing the new deal as against "big business."

Newest Comet Blazes Trail To Naked Eye Tonight

NEW YORK. (AP)—Star gazers will be able to see Peltier's comet with the naked eye tonight, and it will increase in visibility until it reaches its maximum brilliance on August 4.

The comet, discovered by Leslie Peltier, famous amateur astronomer of Delphos, Ohio, is at present in the constellation cassiopeia.

Prof. William H. Barton, jr., acting head of the Hayden Planetarium at the American Museum of Natural History, said the comet is low in the northeast just after dark, but by two or three o'clock in the morning it is high overhead.

About the first of August it will move into Pegasus, said Professor Barton, and will move into Aquarius on Aug. 3 and 4, when it will be about 16,000,000,000 miles from the earth.

Peltier's comet will not be as spectacular as was Halley's comet 25 years ago, but when closest to the earth will be about as bright as the dimmer stars in the big dipper. Nor will its tail be as long as that of Halley's comet.

Human Test Tube Gets New Job on New York Radio

DENVER. (AP)—An airplane sped Carl Erickson, 61, once known as the "human test tube" at the Colorado state penitentiary, to a new experience today.

Erickson was enroute to New York with a radio contract in his pocket.

As a convict serving a life sentence at Canon City he volunteered to act as a "human test tube" for a tuberculosis serum test. He later was granted a pardon for risking his life in the test.

Erickson said he did not know what he was to do on the radio, but thought he is to be interviewed about his prison experience and the odd manner in which he obtained his pardon.

He spent 20 years in the penitentiary for slaying his wife. Since his release he has been working a mine in the mountains west of here.

Because of his good health he was one of two volunteers who submitted to the test, which involved injection of tuberculosis germs and later treatment against those germs with a new serum.

For eight months two men submitted to the tests within the prison walls. They apparently suffered no ill-effects from the experiment.

ORANGE SALES SET RECORD

June sales of oranges set an all-time record for one month's sales by the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, the California Citrograph reported today.

Sales were 6000 carloads of 462 boxes each. The oranges, if placed side by side, would circle the equator with 1200 miles to spare, mathematicians computed.

Shipments, however, were within consumer demands, as the price advanced steadily, returns averaging 40 cents more per box at the close of June than at the end of May.

POLICE REPORTS

Officers were searching for the car owner who yesterday drove up to a filling station at Fifteenth and Main streets, had five gallons of gasoline put in the tank, and then drove off. He neglected to pay the station operator, R. D. Spencer.

Antonio Reyes, charged with drunk driving, paid the heaviest fine in city court yesterday. He contributed $150. Traffic fines included Ida M. Burnett, Thomas O'Brien, T. R. Colt and R. W. Yeager, parking, $1; Lee Kohler, four in front seat, $3; Charles Albert Birch, blocking driveway, $1, and Carl Johnson and Gordon W. Lindsey, speeding, $8 and $6.

RADIO SPEAKER IS ATTACKED

SAN DIEGO. (AP)—Bert Vanzi, 39, well-known Pacific Coast lecturer and radio commentator, was attacked near his home late last night by two unidentified men, he reported to police today.

Vanzi, his face badly lacerated with a razor and his body bruised, said he was attacked because he has been criticizing Mussolini and his present form of government.

He told Officer C. L. Dietrich one man stood guard with a revolver while the other knocked him to the ground and slashed his face.

"The next time your tonsils will be removed, so just guard your speech," Vanzi quoted one man.

TELLS HOW EGG QUALITY IMPROVED

By raising the quality of eggs produced here, Orange county poultrymen may increase their incomes, County Farm Advisor Harold E. Wahlberg said today.

He reported that although the county has many natural advantages which aid in producing quality eggs, the average quality is not what it should be. Moderate climate, comparatively high humidity which reduces evaporation, and closeness to market are the advantages.

Larger Income

"Last year," he reported, "our income from eggs was $453,000. Reports show that only about 50 per cent of the eggs shipped were graded 'large extras.' The difference between the money received for the large extras and the lower grades was about three cents per dozen. If half the lower grades shipped had been large extras, the income would have been increased about $90,000.

"The common causes of eggs being graded below large extra are small sizes, unclean, and having a large air cell.

Better Methods

"The size can be improved by culling out small hens. Cleanliness can be improved by keeping the yards dry at all times, by having sufficient litter on the floors and in yards, and by keeping the nests well filled with rice hulls or a similar material.

"The air cell in an egg is slightly less than one-eighth inch shortly after it is laid. To keep it as near this size as possible, collect the eggs twice daily in warm weather and put them in a cool place where there is a minimum of air circulation. Eggs should be marketed at least twice weekly."

JAMES IN LAST LIFE PLEA

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Attorneys for Robert S. James made their final bid today to convince a superior court jury the green-eyed master barber should not be sent to the gallows for the death of Mary James, last of his seven wives.

James is charged with murdering his wife by drowning her in a bathtub after subjecting her to torture by a rattlesnake's fangs.

Counsel for James depicted him as the neurotic, emotionally unstable, mentally deficient descendant of a family in which psychopathic cases were common—as a man who never had a chance.

Depositions were introduced to show that the defendant had an unhappy, squalid childhood in Alabama, that he was uneducated, kicked about and mistreated.

Ask $4,000,000 For Bay Bridge

SACRAMENTO. (AP)—The California toll bridge authority will ask the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for $4,000,000 from a $10,000,000 fund to build interurban facilities on the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge.

The authority also renewed insurance on the huge structure for another three years at a cost of $435,000, and discussed opening ceremonies, scheduled for Nov. 12.

MORE ABOUT TOWNSEND

for a body attachment. Sacharow, his brother Morris, and Deputy Sheriff Joe Podseday entered a cab at a downtown hotel to follow a limousine occupied by Townsend, Mrs. Townsend, and Harry Maines.

By means of short cuts, Townsend's car was overtaken in East Cleveland.

Townsend immediately was taken in charge by the deputy and returned to the courthouse.

Dr. Francis E. Townsend walked out of a deposition hearing on the Townsend plan today, telling Benjamin F. Sacharow, attorney conducting the hearing, "It's none of your business."

Sachrow was taking depositions in a suit he filed today in behalf of the Rev. Alfred J. Wright of Cleveland, deposed Townsend regional leader. He had asked Dr. Townsend concerning advertisements for pills, appearing in a weekly Townsend publication.

As Dr. Townsend left the attorney's office, his attorney, Sheridan Downey, asserted, "It's another walkout."

Wright's suit named Dr. Townsend and other officers of the Townsend organization as plaintiffs, and asked removal of Dr. Townsend and trustees of Old Age Revolving Pensions, Ltd., accounting of more than $1,000,000 in the organization's funds, and appointment of new trustees and a receiver.

Sacharow's retort to Dr. Townsend's parting statement was "it's our business to know whether you are going to continue to fool the American people."

Dr. Townsend declared Sacharow's questions were "utterly irrevalent and absurd" and were "calculated to arouse the public against our organization.

"I don't expect the courts of Ohio to cite me in connection with that hearing," he said.

"The courts could not listen to these sort of questions and stand for that sort of thing."

MIKE GOES FOR STROLL

Baffled Drivers Stalled

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Mike, a mule, broke his tether and escaped from a clover patch, close in, yesterday. He ambled toward town on Venice boulevard, ignoring red lights and traffic rules, and transformed it into a long line of baffled, apoplectic motormen, swearing automobile drivers and laughing pedestrians.

The first protest was telephoned to police from Twelfth avenue: "Mule on the car track. Send the radio cops."

Not one but three radio cars responded. The officers pleaded, made clucking noises and finally started throwing things. But Mike kept moving on with the dignity and impersonality of old man river, snarling traffic as he went.

In the middle of the busiest intersection for miles around, Venice and Western, Mike paused to meditate. Street cars strung out in a line behind him. Crowds gathered.

Radio Officer Bill Homan fashioned a lariat from the tow rope of his car, dropped it neatly about Mike's neck. But Mike refused to budge.

"Ride him, cowboy," the mob shouted.

"I'm a cowboy, all right, or used to be," said Homan, "but I never had to ride a mule yet, and I'm dadblamed if I'll do it now."

"Me, I used to work in a mine," said Bob Moyer, Homan's radio partner. "I'm used to mules. I'll ride him."

And so he did. Mike did not seem to mind. Followed by an admiring throng, Moyer rode in state back to the Wilshire police station.

There, someone said, "That's Ed Gutting's Mule," and Ed was summoned.

"He's an ornery cuss," Ed said. "Likes to explore."

DEBS CURTSY TO EDWARD

LONDON, (AP)—Debutantes made their curtsies today at King Edward's garden court in the grounds of Buckingham Palace without the glitter of uniforms and the soft light of candelabra to add glamor to the scene.

For with Britain's royal family in half mourning for King George, there could be none of the grandeur of formal presentation in the white and gold ballroom for the debs of 1936.

Only the colors of the flowers vied with the women's dresses, for the men, from the King downwards, wore sombre tail-coats and shining silk hats.

Probably this year's debutantes were the first ever to make their curtsey on the close-cropped grass of the palace lawns; certainly they were the first to pay homage to a sovereign dressed in mufti. At evening courts the King always appears in the full-dress uniform of an admiral or field marshal.

As each deb stepped forward to where the King sat under the red and gold silk canopy of the Durbar tent, the Lord Chamberlain called her name, but the girls were not presented by an older woman according to the usual custom. They faced the ordel of curtsying alone. Queen Mary did not attend.

Five hundred presentations were made. A similar number will be made when the second and last reception is held tomorrow.

ANIMAL FILM OPENS AT WALKERS

The latest jungle thriller from the wilds of the Malay peninsula, Frank Buck's "Fang and Claw," opens tomorrow for a two-day run at Walker's State theater. It shares honors with the hilarious "Everybody's Old Man," starring Irvin S. Cobb, original Kentucky Colonel.

"Fang and Claw" evokes thrills by a rapid succession of hair-breadth escapes and breath-taking struggles between man and animal, both in pursuit and capture.

More than 2000 animals and 5000 birds were captured by Buck on his recent expedition and brought back to America for various zoological collections. The most interesting among them furnish the action for "Fang and Claw."

When a bachelor captain of industry adopts a wild pair of modern youngsters and proceeds to teach them a few things about life and love, curious and hilarious things are bound to happen. They do, in "Everybody's Old Man," the second half of this outstanding double bill.

Rochelle Hudson, Normal Foster, Alan Dinehart, Sara Hayden, Donald Meek and Warren Hymer are some of the stars who support Irvin Cobb in this delightful picture.

REVIVE FLOWER STREET PLAN

Opening of South Flower street from Edinger to the south city limits was a step nearer today after the city planning commission last night asked the city council to authorize preparation of an estimate of costs.

On motion of Councilman Ernest Layton the request was referred to a special committee consisting of Councilmen Ernest Layton, Joseph P. Smith and William Penn, who are to report findings to the council later.

Bowling, grand old game they say originated over in northern Italy, 1000 to 1500 years ago, is gaining in popularity here, what with 40 businessmen vieing for honors in an eight-team league at the Jamison alleys on West Fourth.

New teams, including the B. P. O. E.'s, are being organized.

Pat Kelley's Main cafeteria quintet, with three players sporting the best averages at the pavilion, is leading seven rivals with 26 wins against 10 losses. The Home cafe is second with 23 wins, 13 defeats.

Trailing are the Santa Ana market, 18 and 18; Weber's team No. 2, 17 and 15; Pacific Plumbing company, 16 and 17; Weber's team No. 1, 15 and 13; Monty's, 15 and 29, and Knox Brothers, 7 and 27. (Exclusive of last night's results, which started a new week in the second of three rounds of play.)

Fred Germain of the Main cafe boasts an average of 167 pins; Claude Anderson of Monty's, 166; Tom Allen of the Main cafe, 162; Jack Oakley of the Main cafe, 160, and Vern Pee of Knox Brothers, 160.

The world championships in bowling, to be conducted in Berlin this week, have drawn more entries than the Olympic Games. Exactly 5155 bowlers from 13 nations are entered. Forty bowling alleys of the different styles of all countries have been built for championship play.

LUTZE WHIPS PICO; READY FOR LOPEZ

Nick Wins Third Time By Knocking Mexican Cold in Second

By BOB GUILD

The ghost of the big, bad, unbeatable Senor Don Juan Oliquivalpico, once, twice, thrice, and we hope for all, was laid last night.

They made doughty Nick Lutze smash the bad boy from Mexico's pampas three times. Once he beat him, with a title match promised as reward. They rematched them, and he beat him again. Surely now he was to get a crack at Champ Lopez.

But they matched them again. And this time the ex-Venetian lifeguard whipped Senor Pico as badly as a man can be whipped—so he couldn't come back for more.

Pico Cooled Off

Lutze had dropped the first fall, by means of those pulverizing Pico elbow-smashes and a body slam. He was in a bad way for the second, with the straining Basque grimly trying to tear his arm off at the shoulder with a vengeful hammer-lock.

Then Nick stood up, and making it look easy, dumped the bluebeard over his shoulder for a backward slam. Pico was the only cool man in the house. In fact, he was cold. He was out, and it turned out he was out for all evening. He staggered to a corner, with the gallant Mr. Lutze's help, but he never came back.

Promoter Sam Sampson definitely announced that Lutze will match grunts with Champeen Vincent Lopez here either next Monday or the week after. And that should take care of the ghost of Senor Pico.

Naughty Jack Wins

Thoroughly naughty Jack McArthur won a fight last night, and was the most surprised man in the house. He came out on top in his tussle with Handsome Hans Holland, the living Hollywood statue-man, after 17:48 minutes of tomfoolery.

Holland put up quite a scrap, but was no match for the joyfully unprincipled tactics of Irish Jack McArthur. After kneeing, biting, gouging and slugging Handsome Hans till he was tired, McArthur launched a body-slam that did the trick.

Tiny Roebuck, the snarling Indian chief, made quick work of Oki Shikina. It took him four minutes and 52 seconds to discourage the Nipponese, and one minute more to lay 300 ponderous pounds on top of him for the fall.

In the opener General George Kondelis, the mustachioed mauler, wrestled 30 minutes with Vic Christy to a draw. Christy should be better, coming from Alf Landon's Kansas, but he proved himself no match at histrionics, and no better than a match at wrestling, with the hairy Greek.

A handsome crowd cheered Lutze to the echo.

'Worms' on Olympic House Protested By Australians

BERLIN. (AP)—The word "Worms," painted in large letters on the facade of the Australian team's Olympic Village house, led to a protest to the British ambassador.

But it was just a temporary misunderstanding, and no hard feeling exists now that the nazis have explained.

Among the first Olympians to arrive, the Aussies were officially welcomed by two brass bands and extended every courtesy. But, when they were taken to their

Olympic village building, there, right on the front, was the word "Worms."

The leader of the Australian delegation hustled to the British embassy.

Then came the explanation. Every house in the Olympic village bears the name of some German City.

Worms is a city on the Rhine, made famous by the Diet of 1521, before which Luther declared: "Here I stand; I cannot do otherwise. So help me God, Amen."

COOPER EARNS GOLF CROWN

ST. PAUL. (AP) — The seven-year-old St. Paul $5000 open golf tournament looked today like Lighthorse Harry Cooper's own particular field of activity as he pocketed the $1200 first prize for the third time.

The Chicago professional gave par and Young Dick Metz of Evanston, Ill., a lacing in the playoff yesterday, Cooper shooting 135 for two tours of the 72-par Keller course against Metz' 139. Metz trounced par plenty himself, with 71 for the morning round and 68 in the afternoon, but it was no match for Cooper's spectacular 66 and 69.

Bearing directly upon the second-half pennant-dash, a postponed game between the Commercial National Bank and Joe's Grocery will be played in the Municipal bowl at 8 o'clock tonight.

Ed Bristow, Tustin High's pitching wonder, held the opposition to four scattered hits while Harold Finley's bankers smothered the South Methodists, 10 to 1, last night. The Elks overpowered the Latter Day Saints in the afterpiece, 11 to 6.

Mearl Youel, the Commercial National's No. 1 hurler, has been saved for tonight's duel with Armand (Lefty) Hanson of Larry Owens' unbeaten grocery gang.

Fred (Porky) Bell slammed two home runs and a single and Joe Cornelius, shortstop, a homer, double and two singles to lead the Elks' 13-hit assault against Bernard Snow's Mormons, who gleaned eight hits off Gil Yorba and Ellwood Lindley.

Leading hitters of the bankers were Russell (Red) Sullivan and Jerry Heard, each with a double and a single. Charley Andres and Ed Gaebe clouted triples.

Cards Better On Road Than Chicago Cubs

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

It may not be very encouraging to fans of the pace-setting Chicago Cubs, but the facts are the St. Louis Cardinals have a slight edge on the National league champions so far this year in their games on foreign fields.

As the two clubs, separated by only one game on the losing side, invaded the East today the Cardinals not only had played more games away from home but had a better percentage. They pointed to a road record of 21 victories as against 15 defeats for a percentage of .583 while the Cubs had won 16 of their 29 games away from Wrigley field for an average of .552.

Cubs Pick Up Two

The schedule calls for the Cubs and the Gas House Gang to make a trip around the eastern half of the circuit before returning to Chicago Aug. 4 to open a four-game series that may go a long way toward settling the National league pennant. Today's schedule placed Chicago in Brooklyn and the Cards at the Polo Grounds against the Giants.

The home-stand, which ended Sunday, saw the Cubs pick up only two games on the Cards, despite the injury to Dizzy Dean and the none-too-good pitching of the remainder of the mound staff. The league champions won 10 of their 14 contests while Frankie Frisch's men were accounting for only seven of their 12 games.

Yanks Nine Ahead

While the National league clubs continued their warfare on the eastern front, the New York Yankees marched into the West, the target for three first division clubs, two of them red hot, and the St. Louis Browns.

The Yanks, after breaking even in 14 games at the stadium, opened their western invasion against the Browns with a nine-game lead over the fast-stepping Indians.

If the ball they played in the East is any criterion, then Cleveland is the team Lou Gehrig and Company must par. The Indians dropped only two games in 12 contests to climb from fifth place to the runner-up position

Catcher Joe Gifford of Huntington Beach turned in the round's most outstanding achievement with a home run for the Oilers with the bases loaded and two away in the ninth at Irvine. The four runs almost overtook Ernie Lagier's Irvine boys, who won, 10 to 8.

Santa Ana at Orange.
Olive at Huntington Beach.
Anaheim at Westminster.

Assigning Ray (Doc) Smith to the important lead-off role and the newly-acquired Charley Zaby to third spot, George Lackaye sends Santa Ana's league-leading Stars against Liston (Memphy) Hill's Cubs in the Orange city park at 8:15 tonight.

Orange must rely on the slants of Roger Larimer, Orange High school youth, who will start against Jim Coates of the pacesetters. Orange hopes to sign Ray Hodgson, Irvine wonder, to replace Al Bushman, who has returned to Anaheim of the County Nightball league.

Olive travels to Huntington Beach and Anaheim to Westminster for other games.

Fans are anxious to see how the Sars will click without their sensational bounce-hitter, Tom Denney, who is vacationing in Oregon. Zaby, who starred for Huntington Beach in its championship series with Santa Ana last September, is a hard driving hitter, but in the past has not reached first base as often as the dependable Denney.

Lackaye said he would use the following batting order: Smith, ss; Al Reboin, rf; Zaby, lf; George Preble, 2b; Nan Coots, 1b; Tom Young, 3b; Coates, p; Ben Koral, c, and Rod Ballard, cf.

Orange is dynamite on its home field, and very, very tough away from home, as evidenced at Huntington Beach Friday when the Cubs pushed across six runs in the ninth only to lose to the 1935 champions, 9 to 8. The Stars were extended to the limit to win the last time at Orange, 5 to 4.

PROTEST IS FILED BY H. B. OILERS

The Huntington Beach night ball commission, in a special meeting yesterday, drew up an official protest over President Walter Wentz's suspension of the Oilers' star pitcher, Louis (Neva) Novikoff.

"We are going to fight this thing to the limit," Rodgers said today. "We want to know by what right the league president has to suspend a player who went to San Joaquin valley league only after securing our permission. We need him back here to prepare for the playoffs."

Coast League Has Five .500 Nines

By the Associated Press

The Coast league has five ball clubs in the .500 class but only three of them turned in winning records for the last month—Seattle, Oakland and Los Angeles.

The Seattle Tribe, by winning 18 and losing 11 during the last four series, le dall teams for consistent performance, followed closely by the second-place Oakland Acorns, who won 18 and dropped 12.

Los Angeles followed with an 18-13 record, which explains its jump from seventh to fifth spot in the standings.

The San Francisco Missions and Portland Beavers took 14, dropped 16; San Francisco Seals performed at a 14-17 clip; San iDego, 13-16, and Sacramento, 13-21.

Past performances may mean little this week in series which see the Oaks begin their dreaded invasion of Portland; the Angels play at San Francisco, Sacramento at Seattle, and Missions at San Diego.

SHARKEY AND LOUIS FIGHT AUG. 18TH

NEW YORK. (AP)—Joe Louis, conqueror of two former heavyweight champions and beaten by another in his meteoric rise and fall, is to get a chance against a fourth ex-titleholder.

The Brown Bomber, knocked out by Max Schmeling last month after flooring Max Baer and Primo Carnera for the full count, has been matched against Jack Sharkey, the Boston veteran who is trodding the comeback trail, for a 10-round bout at the Yankee stadium, Aug. 18.

Promoter Mike Jacobs said he had come to terms with Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, after an all-day conference, and that Louis' handlers had agreed, by telephone, to the arrangement. The milk fund will share in the receipts.

For Louis the bout will mark the start of a new drive he hopes will lead to the heavyweight title now held by Jimmy Braddock. His first match in that direction was abruptly halted last month by Max Schmeling, who stopped him in 12 rounds.

Sharkey recently emerged from retirement for a new whirl at the game in which he already has earned a fortune.

BAER WOULD BOX JIMMY BRADDOCK

OGDEN, Utah. (AP)—Ancil Hoffman said today he has accepted terms for Max Baer to meet Jimmy Braddock in Madison Square Garden in September if the Garden does not sign a heavyweight title fight between Braddock and Max Schmeling.

"Max is in great shape," his manager said. "He now weighs only 213 pounds."

The former playboy champion recently announced he was hitting the comeback trail, gave up leading an orchestra and began fighting a series of four and six round bouts with unknown heavyweights in western cities.

ENGLAND SET FOR SERIES SATURDAY

McGrath Defeats Henkel Of Germany By Score Of 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (AP)—Australia gained the Davis cup challenge round against England today as Vivian McGrath defeated Heiner Henkel of Germany, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4, for the Aussies' third and clinching victory in their tennis series against the Teutons.

McGrath's victory put Australia in the challenge round for the first time since 1924. The Australians will meet the cup-holding English team, led by the redoubtable Fred Perry, in a best three of five match series, starting Saturday.

In the earlier matches of the Australian-German series, Baron Gottfried von Cramm defeated Adrian Quist in five sets; Henkel defaulted to the veteran Jack Crawford after losing the first two sets, and Crawford and McGrath trimmed Von Cramm and Henkel in doubles.

By virtue of his triumph McGrath became the hero of the series. He was pressed into service yesterday after Quist injured an ankle playing against Von Cramm last Saturday.

Crawford and Quist qualified for the inter-zone final against Germany last month when they administered a 3-2 defeat to the United States team at Philadelphia.

NEW YORK. (AP)—Wally Berger, Boston Bee slugger, almost became a Chicago Cub . . . when Wally was in the minors' two-eagle eyed Cub scouts looked him over but decided he was too stiff-armed ever to become a big league hitter. . . . You can identify the scouts by their red faces. . . . Danno O'Mahoney has gone back to Ireland sadder but wiser—also considerably richer, which takes off a lot of the sting. . . . America's Athletic Argosy Arrives at Emerald Isle

By ALAN GOULD

ABOARD S. S. MANHATTAN, EN ROUTE TO BERLIN, (AP)—After touching Cobh this morning and skirting the Emerald isle, recalling memories of the hammer throwing stalwarts of by-gone Olympic days, America's athletic argosy was impatient to complete the eight-day voyage and exchange sea-legs for a brisk workout on Terra firma.

Only enforcement of strict regulations prevented Joe McCluskey, steeplechase star from the New York A. C., and a handful of Irish ancestored mates from lining the rails and cheering the first landing party.

To Arrive Friday

Plymouth and Havre are scheduled ports of calls prior to Hamburg, where the team is slated to arrive Thursday. The current plans call for the athletes to debark early Friday, thus assuring daylight for the full program including a four-hour train ride to Berlin, a reception, quartering in Olympic village, and a brief period for exercise before supper.

The officials are keeping their fingers crossed after an eventful ocean crossing featured by the wielding of the disciplinary big stick and a mild epidemic of sore throats.

Eating Light

Most of the stars, including Gene Venzke, Glen Hardin, Forrest Towns, and several members of the Washington crew, have regained weight they lost during the tryouts.

"All things considered thus far I believe the team is in better shape than the last Olympic voyage in 1928," Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic committee, said. "One thing certain, the athletes are not eating themselves out of championship chances despite the lifting of the menu restrictions."

NEWPORT CITY COUNCIL CALLS $300,000 BOND ELECTION

Brick Dust

Here and There With The Journal's Rambling County Editor

By I. N. (BRICK) GAINES

SEEING as it's still warm weather, we'd better do a little talking about fans.

Baseball fans.

In the past year or so, I've run across lots of baseball fans, but Ed L. Hensley, one of Midway City's prominent citizens, wins first, second and third prize. He hasn't missed a game in four years!

Since the Westminster nightball team was organized four years ago, the prominent real estater has watched every game. Once, when his son was married in Hollywood, friends despaired of keeping the unbroken record intact, but Hensley showed up, 10 minutes late!

* * *

Incidentally, the real estate man is doing a fine service for folks in his community. Some time ago, when residents were discussing possibility of a county library branch in Midway City, they were stumped because there wasn't any place to install such a branch.

So Hensley offered nearly the entire space taken up by his office for the purpose. And there's where the library's been ever since. Proving he's a good citizen, as well as a good baseball fan.

* * *

Speaking of Midway City, I'm wondering what's happened to the volunteer fire department over there. Members first jumped into prominence when they discarded shirts and planted a lawn for the Woman's club. Then they started a drive for a new fire hall, collected the necessary funds, and went ahead with their building program.

Things have been pretty quiet, lately. But I do know that several of the blaze battlers have built fireplaces and ovens and barbecue pits in their backyards. For practice putting out fires, no doubt!

* * *

Frank Orr, who divides his time between moaning about the hot weather and covering a reporter's beat, sprung this'n. So don't blame it on this department, please!

It seems there was a little boy. The little boy was awfully fond of trains. And engineers. Each day he'd go down to the station to watch the limited pull in. As the huge engine would chug into the yards and stop for water, the youngster would tilt his head, wave, and yell, "Hello, Mister Engineer!"

And the engineer never would pay any attention. Busy, no doubt. He'd stick his nose in the air, and go on about his business. And the little boy didn't like that very much.

But then one day the little boy became ill. He was in bed for a week. He worried about the train, which came right on coming into town, anyway. But finally he was allowed to arise from his bed, and the first thing he did was run for the train yards.

The limited was late. The little boy waited and waited. And finally the train pulled into the station. As usual, the little boy tilted back his head and yelled "Hello, Mister Engineer!"

And the engineer said, "Hello, Little Boy."

* * *

I've just discovered why Frank told that story. He knew I was suffering from the heat, and that the story'd leave me cold. It did. Hoping you are the same, I am, etc.

* * *

While on the subject of youngsters, we might give a rave or two about the Pirate Days at Balboa July 31 and Aug. 1. Because it seems that the celebration's to be dedicated to and run by kids of the community, according to the clever pen of H. Welch, C. of C. secretary.

They're to be known as "White Pirates" and will run the whole show. Every junior in town will be appropriately decorated as some sort of pirate.

But that's not all. The affair will be run as a sort of school of instruction, not as to how the kids can become pirates, but how they can conduct themselves safely in the water and on the beach. Which is a whale of an idea, nautically speaking.

On each of the two evenings of the celebration there'll be campfires at strategic spots, with instructors to give swimming lessons, tell stories about early-day navigators, and such things. It'll be fun.

Businessmen are supposed to dress up, too, but who cares about 'em? Us kids are going to have a good time, and if you're down there and see a big crowd, all laughing, and a policeman hauling someone away to Chief Hodgkinson's jailhouse, it'll probably be some county editor caught while masquerading as a 10-year-old pirate!

SEWER PLANT PLANS ARE APPROVED

Tentative Date of Aug. 28 Set; Group Frowns On Motorboat Races

NEWPORT - BALBOA. — Preliminary proceedings for a $300,000 bond issue to construct a sewage disposal system for the Newport-Balboa area were taken at a city council meeting here last night, with a tentative date of Aug. 28 set for a vote on the issue.

The council's action was taken following receipt of recommendations from a citizen's committee, which met to discuss the subject about two weeks ago.

The project would include a disposal plant capable of serving a population of 30,000 persons, an outfall line, which would join the Orange county outfall, and a large collecting main to offer service to residents of Corona Del Mar and Newport Heights, it was announced.

City officials denied a request by the Los Angeles Speedboat association to hold races on the waters of the bay on Aug. 23. The action was taken due to a request by chamber of commerce directors, who pointed out that such races would endanger swimmers in the harbor.

Mayor H. H. Williamson and City Clerk Frank Reinhart were authorized by the council to sign a lease with the Texaco Oil Company for oil development on the city's 93-acre water property on the banks of the Santa Ana river about three miles inland. The city will receive about $3800 yearly rental on the land and also stands to receive a substantial bonus in case oil is discovered, as well as one-sixth royalty. The property is located near the Shell Oil Company's wildcat well now being drilled in that area.

NURSERYMEN PLAN TOUR

FULLERTON. — Having found that scaly bark disease is transmitted by buds from infected trees, and that a necessary safeguard is to select buds from healthy stock, Farm Advisor Harold E. Wahlberg has arranged a special orchard demonstration for Orange county nurserymen July 24 at 10 a. m. on the C. C. Chapman ranch, Fullerton.

Nurserymen will consider the problem of bud selection. Dr. H. S. Fawcett, citrus pathologist of the Riverside experiment station of the University of California, will discuss recent findings on the disease and show how to distinguish the leaf symptoms of the scaly bark virus on new growth.

A historical block of trees, 50 years old and part of the original shipment of River Bros. nursery, London, will be examined. They were planted in Fullerton in 1886.

SPEED CONTROL
(Orange News)

Control stations on the Ridge Route to Bakersfield, where motorists were required to check at each end of the route and so establish the speed at which they traveled, resulted in total elimination of accidents during a period of two weeks' trial. The previous record had been about four accidents per day.

The experiment suggests, of course, that the roads and cars are too fast for safety when irresponsible drivers are turned loose. It emphasizes that there is a limit to speed which is safe and that control of speed will increase safety.

It would, perhaps, be possible to establish control stations at the borders of counties on main highways and secure some of the benefits indicated in the Ridge Route experiment.

All the preaching and public education on the dangers of fast driving seem to accomplish little of real value in cutting down the number of traffic accidents. It is growing clear that measures of restraint must be applied if there is to be any improvement.

Perhaps there is something in this Ridge Route experiment.

SCIENTIST SEEKING WATERMELON WITH THIN, TOUGH RIND

CHARLESTON, S. C. (AP)—Dr. Charles F. Poole, plant expert, is looking into the genetics of the watermelon.

He and his co-workers are conducting research to ascertain inheritance factors of the plant with the aim ultimately of developing a melon combining the best features of various brands.

"The chief difficulty now with watermelons is that each plant requires different land space in which to grow," says Dr. Poole.

He says he will study them with the view toward growing one having the market standard rind—thin but tough—as well as sweetness and symetry.

And he wants a wilt-proof melon.

CROSSING WORK NEARING END

NEWPORT BEACH.—Work on construction of the $180,000 overhead crossing at The Arches intersection leading into Newport Beach is scheduled for completion about Sept. 27, it has been announced by officials and engineers in charge of work. The Mundo Engineering company is ahead of schedule on the job, recent reports have stated.

Completion of work on the overhead crossing will result in elimination of one of the worst traffic bottlenecks in Southern California. The new road will not only eliminate congested conditions at the intersection of Newport boulevard and the Coast highway but it will afford visitors to the Newport harbor section a beautiful view of the bay and adjacent territory, local civic workers point out.

Officials of the Newport Harbor chamber of commerce are planning a huge celebration to mark completion of the crossing. It was largely through the efforts and persistence of a chamber of commerce committee headed by J. P. Greeley that the crossing was finally built. First plans advocated by Greeley called for sharing of expense by the city and county. Later the state highway department took over the Coast highway and the city, county and state planned to share the expense. Later still the state took over Newport boulevard and finally state officials were induced to do the job.

COLORFUL STATE FAIR IS SEEN BY ORANGE MAN

ORANGE.—Increased color and sparkle at California's historic 82-year-old fair in Sacramento, Sept. 5 to 14, will be an outstanding feature of the 1936 exposition.

This was the assertion of D. Eyman Huff, Orange, chairman of the dairy products and horticultural and agricultural divisions, in commenting that the fair board is spending upwards of $10,000 for decorations alone on the main agricultural building.

This huge pavilion is one of the largest of its kind in the country and will be a veritable splash of color. An attempt will be made to harmonize the building effects with the hundreds of exhibits. For the first time, a large canopy will be hung the full length of the structure. New lighting effects and improved ventilation systems are being installed.

"But that is only a starter," said Huff, "additional ice-cold drinking fountains for those who prefer the restful lawn to grandstand seats is being provided. New landscaping is being done in front of the grandstand and across the track."

Other improvements noted by Huff are the added two-judge system for dairy cattle, permitting judging of two breeds at the same time in adjoining rings. A new announcing system will permit the judge to make his remarks on reasons for placements.

Added premiums offered brings the total purses, trophies, awards and prizes to more than $145,000 and which is $10,000 over that offered last year.

HUNTINGTON BEACH.—Proposed slant drilling of oil wells along the Coast will be a topic of discussion at the monthly meeting of the Orange County Coast association, which will be held in the Golden Bear cafe here this evening, President Elmer Hughes, Seal Beach, has announced.

Speakers are expected to explain an initiative measure which will come before voters in November whereby such drilling would be authorized, with a portion of the proceeds from oil produced to be used by the state park commission.

Talks will also be made on enforcement of the $2 state fishing license law, which requires salt water anglers to obtain a license, and upon the county fishing preserve legislation, which recently was declared unconstitutional by the district court of appeals. Committee reports and discussion of state parks and beaches will also be heard, Secretary Harry Welch announced.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

SYNOPSIS: Inspector Hylton from Scotland Yard, and Sergeant White are about to begin an inspection of old Arthur Burdett's house at Hope Enderton, guided by Burdett's unprepossessing manservant. The occasion for the inspection is the murder of Burdett, and the curious fact about the murder is that almost everybody in the village is secretly rather relieved that the old miser has been done in. The house is large, but mostly unused, and the atmosphere is eery.

CHAPTER 10
COLD BLAST

Enderton Court was built in the mid period of Victorian industrailism. 1840 saw the foundations dug, a year and half later the place was finished. It was a multiplicity of rooms and great lengths of cheerless corridor, which possibly did not matter so much in the days when servants were cheap and plentiful.

Such a place needs life and plenty of it, if it is to be at all bearable, and for half a generation Enderton Court had known little enough life. In one corner of it a savage, inward-eating spirit had sat jealously huddled over an occasional spark of begrudged fire, and somewhere in the outer regions a cold and comfortless existence; for the rest its big rooms were sheeted and silent.

It looked doubly deserted now as the three men made their way about. Even Inspector Hylton felt a certain eeriness from that damp, deserted mausoleum.

They inspected the ground floor thoroughly.

"Even a house agent would have a job to describe this in glowing terms," was Hylton's comment; "now what about the upstairs?"

"This way, Mister," Lumsdale said briefly, leading the way up the fine wide staircase.

"This is where the old man slept, and my room's three doors along."

Inspection was duly made of two bedrooms, which Hylton privately thought must be as bleak and uninviting as ever any human beings slept in.

"And the other rooms?" he queried.

"All empty. Bits of furniture in some of 'em; old boxes and the like, but for the most part empty."

"Well, we'll poke our heads in," the Inspector said cheerily, and they only poked their heads in to find only too dismal a verification of Lumsdale's account.

"Can't say I altogether blame you for not falling in love with the place," was Hylton's comment.

"This part's all right," Lumsdale said. "We can go in the other wing if you've a mind."

"I've a mind to everything," Hylton assured him. "That my one besetting sin in life—curiosity. Which way?"

"This way, Mister." Lumsdale led them down a long corridor which turned sharply to the right at its end. "This is where all the servants used to sleep when the house was full like, I suppose.

"Anything interesting here?"

"Nothing as I've ever heard of, Mister."

Kingsley Hylton was last out of the third bleak bedroom they visited and for a moment, the Sergeant with the lantern being down the corridor, was virtually in darkness.

"Hallo," he cried sharply, "who's opened a window?"

"Neither of the men ahead seemed to hear him. "Who's opened a window?" he called out more loudly, and there seemed to be a sort of sardonic satisfaction in the voice that floated back, "No windows been opened here for long enough."

It was an assurance that did not satisfy the Inspector. "Fetch the lamp back and let's have a look," he ordered, and the three men made a silently thorough inspection of all the windows they could find. All were fastened, many shuttered.

"Why, did you hear something Inspector?" Sergeant White asked.

"No, I didn't hear anything," Hylton answered, "I just wondered." He caught sight for an instant of the grin on Lumsdale's queer face, and not for anything would he have added that for a brief space, ten seconds or more maybe, as he had stood alone in the darkness, he had felt across his cheek a chill, damp blast of air.

"Anything else you want to see?" Lumsdale asked when they regained the hall.

"No. I don't think so. Not at present. When's the inquest, Sergeant?"

"Friday morning, Inspector."

"Um. We shall see what that brings out."

"I can tell you that now, Mister," Lumsdale said, a trifle unexpectedly. "Nothing."

A considerable experience of inquests inclined Kingsley Hylton privately to agree with his monosyllabic prophecy, but he did not say so; instead he said,

"Just tell me about that chain on the front door, Lumsdale, I'm not quite clear about that."

"Simple enough. Whenever I went out and old Burdett was alone all the back was shut up and locked, like I've told you. I had to see to that. Then after I'd gone and banged the front door behind me, the old boy put the chain up."

"Was it on when you came back?"

"Last Monday night d'you mean?"

"No, any ordinary night."

"Yes. I'd ring the bell and the old man would come shuffling over the hall with a candle and open the door two or three inches. Then when he saw who it was, he'd let me in, mostly without a word, and I'd have to put the chain up again after me."

"Now, last Monday night when you went down to fetch Sergeant White, which way did you go out?"

"T'front."

"Was the chain in place or not?"

"No, I noticed that particular."

"Um. I see. Well, I don't think we need worry you any more tonight. We shall be up in the morning of course. Good night."

"Night."

The Inspector found the sharp, frosty night air pleasant after the shuttered dampness of Enderton Court. He was cold and wanted exercise; Sergeant White seemed to be of the same mind and they swung along steadily, for the most part in silence.

Once Hylton said, breaking a long silence. "Do you believe in ghosts, Sedgeant?"

"Yes sir."

"You do?"

"I've never seen any convincing proof that there aren't any."

"Have you ever seen any convincing proof that two and two make four?"

"Mr. Einstein isn's so sure they do, is he sir?"

Hylton laughed. "Well," he sad, "I've never heard of a murder committed by a ghost before. What would you say, Sergeant, if it turned out along those lines?"

"It's something I wouldn't care to be mixed up in," James White answered quietly.

HUMAN ICING PLANT TALK ON KVOE

Apropos of the heat wave, this evening's "Keep Smiling" broadcast to be made from KVOE at 6 o'clock, will explain the wonderful workings of the human body which strives to maintain, at all times, an even, comfortable temperature. Under the title of "Normal Body Heat and Fever," the broadcast will tell how various organs produce heat, how the "human cooling system" makes hot weather bearable and what happens when the "heating" or "cooling systems" seemingly act erratically.

Bob Nolan and Verne Spencer of the Sons of the Pioneers will take special bows during their program tonight at 6:45 when this group will sing two songs written by these boys. Nolan's song is with many listeners. Spencer's "Chant of the Plains," a melodious inspiration that has found favor composition is another, happy song-inspiration called "Sing, Cowboy, Sing." In addition, the Sons of the Pioneers will harmonize the old favorite: "The Old Oaken Bucket."

Classics Slated

An hour's presentation of popular dance rhythm will be provided tuners-in beginning at 7 o'clock tonight to be followed by a 15-minute program of march melodies as played by nationally-known bands. 8:15 will bring piano melodies of various types and tempos and at 8:30 a presentation of the Artists' Recital bureau, a branch of the Federal Music project.

Included in this presentation will be Atillo Damico, baritone, who will sing "Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride," Harris; Clara Brookhurst, contralto, singing Blow Thou Winter Winds," from "As You Like It;" Carmela Ipolitow, concert violinist, playing "Dance Espanol," and Rose Ackerston, soprano, singing "The Star," Rogers, and "I Love Life," Mana-Zuca.

"Spoken English and Radio" titles one of the most interesting of the series of broadcasts called "You and Your Radio" to be made from KVOE tomorrow evening at 5:30, one of the series scheduled every Wednesday at that hour.

TO GATHER FOR LANDON TALK

Orange county Republicans will make Thursday a gala day, with more than 50 gatherings scheduled to be held throughout the county.

Assembling at the suggestion of Howard Irwin, Republican county central committee chairman, the G. O. P. supporters will listen to the radio broadcast of Gov. Alf M. Landon's acceptance speech to be given Thursday in Topeka, Kan.

In addition to the public gatherings slated, numerous groups will meet in private homes to hear Landon accept the presidential nomination in an address that will strike the keynote of his campaign.

Negroes Saved From Lynching

CHARLESTON, S. C. (AP)—Two negro prisoners accused of slaying a police detective were whisked safely out of Charleston by Sheriff J. M. Poulnot today after a mob of 500 persons surrounded the county jail.

The negro prisoners are Benjamin J. Rivers and Isaac Brown, held in connection with the slaying of Detective Purce A. Wansley a week ago. Detective Chief John J. Healey said Rivers confessed yesterday.

Life Insurance Lawsuit Filed

Declaring the Alliance Mutual Life Insurance company refused to pay $1000 on a policy insuring the life of Mary Lucas and naming her as beneficiary, Martha Allen yesterday started suit in superior court.

Mary Lucas died Aug. 20, 1934, of lobar pneumonia, according to the complaint, prepared by Loren Miller and Elijah Washington, Los Angeles attorneys.

The will of Mrs. Susan Maria Morris, leaving stocks and other possessions to six children, was filed for probate in superior court here yesterday by Mary V. Morris of Los Angeles, a daughter.

Mrs. Alice M. Bigelow of Santa Ana, is one of the beneficiaries. The estate is valued at not more than $10,000, according to the petition accompanying the will.

ELAINE TO GET DIAMOND RING

NEW YORK. (AP)—Elaine Barrie is going to get back her "engagement" ring from John Barrymore, but it will require the cooperation of three banks to do it.

Miss Barrie brought the ring with her last fall from Havana after a cruise on the actor's yacht. She announced at the time it was her engagement ring from Barrymore, but Barrymore got it back after a quarrel with Miss Barrie.

It now develops the ring, together with a gold brocade mandarin coat, has been in the vaults of the Trade Bank of New York in escrow for Miss Barrie until she became 21 years old. She observed her 21st birthday last week and the Trade bank is ready to turn the two articles over to her.

All that the bank is waiting for is a paper from Hollywood bearing Miss Barrie's signature. Bank officials expect it tomorrow.

When it arrives the Trade bank will deliver the ring and coat to the Chase National bank, agent for the First National bank of Beverly Hills, Calif. The Chase bank will send them to Beverly Hills to deliver to Miss Barrie.

Barrymore's divorce from Dolores Costello Barrymore becomes final Oct. 23. Hollywood gossip has it he and Miss Barrie will be married some time later.

RELIGION NOT PARTY ISSUE

NEW YORK. (AP)—Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley said today he deplored injection of racial and religious issues into the campaign and pledged the democratic efforts to remain free from "such intolerance."

Commenting upon the declaration of the Republican national chairman, John D. M. Hamilton last week—in which Hamilton charged the Democrats with fostering rumors and reports that he was anti-semitic—Farley said today he wanted to have "one last word" on the subject.

"That is not the way we run a campaign," the Democratic chairman said. "We don't do things that way. I'm not responsible for such charges that will probably appear frequently in the course of the campaign."

Lake Mead Is Cooling Off Southern Nevada

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Man-made Lake Mead, created by Boulder Dam, is making the climate of near-by southern Nevada cooler, commercial aviators claimed today.

"The huge lake is acting as a charging battery for cold air in the passenger cabins of our transcontinental planes during the hot weather," said L. W. Goss, Airline operations superintendent.

"While it is true that for every 1000 feet of altitude three degrees of heat are lost in air travel, we have also discovered that the air over Lake Mead is 10 to 15 degrees cooler at the surface and 65 degrees cooler on the average at 12,000-foot altitudes."

Clarence Corron, Airlines weather chief, said he believed in time the cooling influence of Lake Mead would extend a considerable distance from its shores.

'Plugs' 3735 Songs; Lands But 50

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Henry R. Cohen, who testified to "servicing" 3735 songs for amateurs and "placing" only 50 with the movies over a five-year period, told the postoffice department yesterday 50 per cent of his own original compositions "made money."

The song writing business, though, "is a gamble," he added, assuring Assistant Solicitor W. C. O'Brien it was "impossible" to draw a comparison between results obtained with his own compositions and those he serviced.

Cohen, defending the right of his Universal Song Service of Hollywood, Calif., to use the mails, had been asked by O'Brien to sustain the veracity of advertising claims that he could put amateur song writers on the road to success.

"I don't know," was the answer.

DENY DOCTOR OFFICE ON BROADWAY

Dr. John McAuley can't establish an office in connection with a residence at 1319 North Broadway. The city council last night, on recommendation of the planning commission, denied his request for a permit for special use.

Action was taken after long discussion of petitions protesting the proposal to open the zone, and others waiving objections. Councilman William Penn, however, pointed out that those protesting were nearest the physician's proposed residence.

Request of the Signal Oil company to widen driveways at 307 East First was referred to the street commissioner and city engineer with power to act.

Arlin W. Palmer's request to be allowed to operate a produce stand at 1621 West First street, was referred to the planning commission for recommendation.

A special committee of the police, street and fire commissioners was appointed to consider request of property owners on West First street from Van Ness to Ross for rezoning for business. The planning commission recommendation was to hold the application on file pending establishment of set-back lines.

CITY AID FOR ORCHESTRA IS ASKED

Santa Ana Symphony orchestra last night placed before the city council the first formal request for use of money from the new city advertising fund.

Dr. Merrill W. Hollingsworth asked that the city sponsor four free concerts to be given in the high school auditorium Oct. 10, Dec. 12, March 6 and May 15, at a cost of $150 each.

He pointed out that before the depression the city provided up to $9000 for orchestra and band. In recent years the musicians and private donors have supported the orchestra, Dr. Hollingsworth said.

The matter was referred to the finance committee.

SAY WITNESS IS GUNNER

ST. PAUL. (AP)—Defense counsel in the kidnaping trial of John (Jack) Peifer, former St. Paul night club owner, levelled an attack upon the credibility of Byron Bolton, star witness for the prosecution and author of the statement that a former St. Paul police chief figured in the ransoming of Brewer William Hamm.

Attorney Archie Cary declared he would show that Bolton, himself a confessed member of the kidnaping gang, lied on the witness stand when he denied he knew how to operate a machine gun.

"We will show through testimony of witnesses and possibly through cross-examination of Bolton himself, that he took part in the St. Valentine's day massacre in Chicago in 1929," Cary said. "We can prove that he was an expert machine gunner."

Seven "Bugs" Moran gangsters, lined up in a garage, were chopped down with machine guns in the massacre.

U. S. District Attorney George F. Sullivan said the government contemplated no action against Tom Brown, the police officer Bolton said was figured for $25,000 of the $100,000 ransom for keeping the gang informed of police movements. Brown was a member of the police kidnap detail at the time.

Brown was suspended after Bolton's testimony, but Sullivan said the three-year statute of limitations had outlawed the Lindbergh kidnap act's application to the Hamm kidnaping, which occurred in June, 1933.

It was Bolton's testimony in the Hamm kidnaping and that of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, which sent such leaders of the gang as Arthur (Doc) Barker to the penitentiary. Alvin Karpis, another leader, pleaded guilty in the Hamm case after first signifying his intention to stand trial with Peifer.

Bolton was named by federal agents as the Karpis-Barker gang's machine gunner.

BRITISH AND U.S. FILMS MERGE

NEW YORK. (AP)—A deal consolidating the producing and distributing interests of two American and one British film companies was announced yesterday by Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of directors of Twentieth-Fox Film Corp.

Made public as "an agreement in principle," the deal whereby Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will purchase half of the holdings of Twentieth-Century-Fox in the trust company controlling Gaumont-British films, is subject to approval by the boards of directors of the three corporations.

The amount of money involved in the deal was not announced.

Isador Ostrer, president of Gaumont-British, hinted that the American film interests may ultimately profit from Gaumont-British interests in the Baird Television corp., a British concern.

Asked how much control Gaumont-British exercised in the Baird company, Ostrer said, "We own a sizeable block of stock."

The deal includes, in addition to the purchase by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer of half of Twentieth Century-Fox's 49 per cent interest in the Metropolis & Bradford Trust, which controls Gaumont-British, the organization of a new company.

Man Charged With Abusing Daughter

ALBION, N. Y. (AP)—Alex Derzejewski, 47, of Shelby was in jail here today on a third degree assault charge after Sergt. Harry Adams of the state police said he found him using his 13-year-old daughter, Angeline, to guide his horse in plowing.

Adams said the man beat his son, Alex, jr., when he came to his sister's aid after the horse fell on her. He quoted Derzejewski as saying he had to make her work because "she wants to be too American."

SURVEY SHOWS INTERSECTIONS ARE PEDESTRIAN DEATH TRAPS

TEN PERSONS ARE KILLED BY CARS

Carelessness Cited As Major Factor in 43 Road Fatalities

Highways between crosswalks are death paths for pedestrians.

Ten persons have died in Orange county this year as a result of automobile - pedestrian accidents, and foremost among causes is that the pedestrian crossed the highway between crosswalks.

But that's only part of the gruesome story of highway death for 1936. Forty-three persons who on Jan. 1 were alive and breathing are now dead as the result of traffic accidents.

43 Deaths

Instead of living, breathing human beings, they now are merely marks on the coroner's records, a bit of granite in some cemetery.

The nation's traffic fatalities have dropped almost 5 per cent for the first part of 1936 as compared with the same period in 1935.

Orange county today has 43 traffic deaths for 1936. Last year at this time it was 30. Why?

Figures supplied by the Automobile Club of Southern California from state and county figures show the principal reasons for highway deaths.

Carelessness Fatal

The pedestrains—of whom 10 have died this year—are most likely to meet death while crossing at a place unexpected to the motorist. Walking along the highway is second, and crossing carelessly at intersections is third in number of deaths.

The driver who "takes his half of the road in the middle" is more to blame than any other variety, the figures show. Violating the other fellow's right of way is second, speed is third, and incompetent handling is fourth.

In other words, the auto is seldom to blame. California statistics for 1935 show 33,729 accidents last year—with only 2019 attributed to mechanical failure. The rest resulted from human failure.

Increase Shown

Most of California's accidents, too, occurred at intersections in daylight and in good weather. Saturdays, Sundays and early evenings were worst by comparison.

Both passenger and pedestrian fatalities in the county have steadily increased. Ten pedestrians were killed in 1933 and the same number in 1934, according to coroner's records. The toll jumped to 12 in 1935, and this year already it has reached 10—with more than five months to go.

Democrats Will Hear Young Bryan

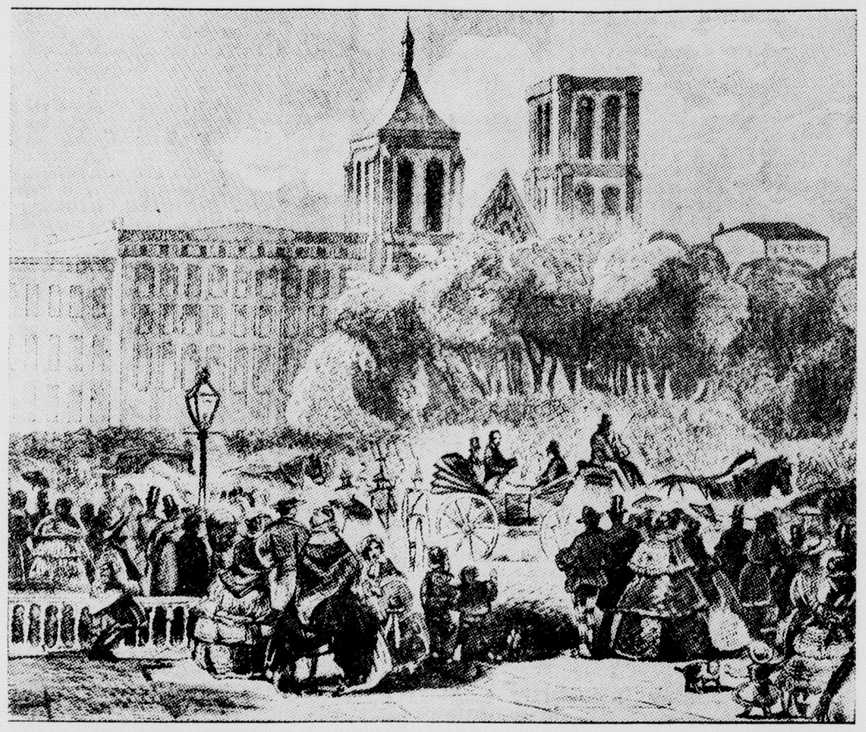

That William Jennings Bryan, jr., will address young Democrats of Orange county in the Fullerton ball park July 31, was announced last night at monthly meeting of the Santa Ana Young Democrats club, in the Green Cat cafe.

State senate and assembly candidates and Congressional candidates spoke during the meeting. Robert Riddell, executive vice-president of the Young Democrats of California, was the main speaker.

Candidates present included C. A. Watson, Orange; Robert E. Crowley, and Robert Hatfield, Fullerton, assembly; Bryan Bostick and Harry Westover, state senate; Harold Thoreson and Joseph Seymour, Riverside, and Ray Adkinson, Santa Ana, Congress.

Chips Off the Old Blocs

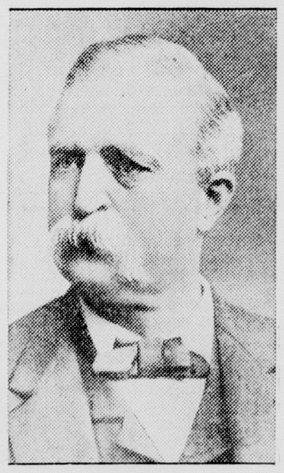

3rd Party Movements In American History

An ovation to Millard Fillmore, "Know Nothing" candidate for President in 1856, in New York City's Union Square, was pictured thus "from a sketch by our own artist" in Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper of July 12 that year.

Millard Fillmore, an ex-President attempting a comeback as a "Know Nothing" in 1856, received Maryland's eight electoral votes.

General J. B. Weaver, Populist candidate in 1892, won more than a million popular votes but only 22 in the electoral college.

"Know Nothings" Fall Short in 1852; So Do Populists

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Numerous political movements sprang up during the 19th century to plague the old-line parties, but only two assumed proportions of a major threat.

They were the "Know Nothings" and the "Populists."

The American party, organized in 1852 under the official title of "The Supreme Order of the Star Spangled Banner," originally was a secret association. The popular name of "Know-Nothings" arose from the fact its members disclaimed any knowledge concerning the organization.

Its primary object was to secure the government to those whom the party considered genuine Americans. The cry that "Americans should rule America" won thousands to its fold. Major plank in the Know-Nothing platform was extension of the period for naturalization of aliens to 21 years.

The Know-Nothings soon became powerful, carrying various state elections and electing several representatives to congress.

For the presidential campaign of 1856, the party nominated Millard Fillmore and A. J. Donelson.

Comeback Falls Short

Fillmore was an ex-President at the time. He had been elected vice president in 1848 as a Whig and succeeded to the presidency in 1850 with the death of President Zachary Taylor, serving until 1853.

His attempted comeback in 1856 as Know-Nothing standard bearer failed. Although the ticket received a popular vote of 874,534, it gathered in only eight electoral votes—those of Maryland.

The prediction of Horace Greeley, made during the 1856 campaign, that the Know-Nothing movement would "run its career rapidly and vanish as suddenly as it appeared," proved true.

The "Populists," or People's party, appeared on the national scene in 1891 to champion the cause of the farmer and the working man. The platform of the party demanded free coinage of silver, issue of paper money to be loaned directly to farmers on the security of agricultural crops, abolition of national banks, government ownership of railroads, telegraphs and telephones, a graduated income tax, and prohibition of alien land ownership.

These principals were embodied in the party platform at the national convention in 1892 and James B. Weaver of Iowa was nominated for President. In the election Weaver received more than a million votes and 22 votes in the electoral college. Several of the party's congressional candidates were elected.

Roosevelt Carries On

By 1896, the Democratic party had adopted so many of the principles advocated by the Populists that they endorsed the Democratic nominee for the presidency, William Jennings Bryan, but nominated their own candidate for the vice presidency—Thomas E. Watson.

In the end the Populists lost the greater part of their following into the liberal wing of the Democratic party. The Populist vote in 1900 was only 50,030. It was increased to 113,258 in 1904 because of the restoration to power of the conservative wing of the Democratic party.

After the overwhelming election of Theodore Roosevelt in 1904, the Populists never figured as a potential factor in American politics.

The parade will start and end at the city bowl at Sixth and Olive streets, circling east on Sixth, south on French, west on Fourth, and north on Olive to the bowl.

Young Townsendites will stage a similar meeting at 7 p. m., with Miss Jerri Steeps, former Pacific coast debate champion; John Despol, young Southern California business man, and Robert Hine, California state oratorical champion for 1936, as speakers.

VETERANS HOLD PARK PICNIC

Approximately 300 members of Veterans of Foreign Wars post in Santa Ana, Anaheim, Fullerton and Orange assembled Sunday in Irvine park for the V. F. W. council's picnic.

Earl Troeller, council commander, took charge, assisted by post delegates to the council. Stunts and games were held, with prizes being awarded winners.

Carl Bowen and Fred Weems won the "three-legged man" race; Wayn Kauffman and Bill Cook, boys' sack races; Mrs. Troeller, ladies' nail driving contest; Mrs. W. S. Wisser, ladies' doughnut eating contest; Bob Troeller, boys' cracker-eating contest; Maxine Johnson, girls' sack race; Mrs. Marie Street, ladies' foot race; Mrs. Wisser, peanut-lifting contest; Mrs. Tyreman, rolling pin throwing contest; and Tony Gallup, men's sack race.

Santa Ana post members vanquished Orange men in a tug of war, to be overcome later by the Anaheim post team.

Officials Will Perfect 'Ray' to Detect Bad Fruit

California Fruit Growers exchange officials have left for Chicago to aid General Electric company in perfecting a new x-ray citrus granulation detector which is being developed from a discovery made here by D. W. Tubbs, Orange county agricultural commissioner. This was reported in the August issue of the California Citrograph, trade publication.

Henry Ramsey, manager of the Exchange field department, and W. E. Baier, manager of the research department, are carrying on the investigation.

Tubbs discovered that by placing oranges in an x-ray shoe-fitting machine here he could detect granulation without cutting the fruit. Those developing the device hope to combine it with an electric eye mechanism to reject automatically the granulated fruit.

Files Own Will In Court Here For Probate

Leopold Boecheler, Anaheim, yesterday petitioned the superior court to admit his own will to probate. The unusual request was necessary because Leopold and Ignaz Boecheler, brothers, made a joint will in 1921, each naming the other as beneficiary.

Ignaz Boecheler died July 5, 1936, according to the petition of his brother. His estate consists of an undivided one-half interest in property at Anaheim, held jointly with the surviving brother. Leopold Boecheler also petitioned to terminate the joint tenancy in the property. Because the will was a joint one, Leopold had to file his own along with that of his brother.

SOIL PROJECT LAYS OFF 90 WORKERS

Shortage of Federal Cash Supply Is Reason for Suspension

Ninety WPA workers on Soil Conservation Service projects in Orange county were laid off yesterday on orders received from Washington, Clarence P. Tedford, project manager, announced.

Reason for the layoff, cutting the WPA force on the project 75 per cent, was shortage of federal funds for the work. A similar layoff was ordered on all projects in California and Nevada.

The reduction will be effective until Sept. 30, because of the insufficient federal budget. Work is expected to be resumed in full force Oct. 1. In the meantime a skeleton crew of WPA workers and men from CCC camps will continue activities.

Red Carnation Sails Propel Gay Little Ships Along Table at Yacht Club

Mrs. Irvine Is Hostess Monday

Assistance League, Substitutes Gather For Luncheon

Bidding farewell for six weeks to members of the Assistance league and to those on the regular substitute list, all of whom were her guests yesterday at a luncheon and afternoon of contract bridge at the Newport Harbor Yacht club, Mrs. James Irvine chose a bon voyage motif for her table decorations and appointments. The party preceded by only a few hours Mrs. Irvine's departure for a trip to the Orient.

Thirty-eight guests shared her hospitality, finding places at one long table set out on the cool deck veranda of the clubhouse.

Vieing with the white sails which were skimming past the railing were the red carnation sails on two beautiful boats sailing down the center of the luncheon table. In alternate positions with the red ships, forming a charming contrast, were swan vases filled with white carnations; and little sea shells served as nut cups at the places.

A pleasing surprise feature of the luncheon hour was the appearance of a birthday cake honoring Mrs. George Briggs, a member of the league, who was celebrating her birthday anniversary yesterday.

Plans for the coming months were discussed in the hour of business which followed the luncheon, and the report of the treasurer was given, showing the help that had been given in the past few months to the Day Nursery, the project behind the league activities.

Several hours of contract followed in the afternoon, the card tables also being set on the bayside porch. Two new members were welcomed into the substitute group at this time, Mrs. John Scripps and Mrs. Edgar F. Elfstrom.

During Mrs. Irvine's absence, the league will have two informal gatherings, one on Aug. 3, a no-hostess affair, down at the Hotel Laguna, and one on Aug. 17, when the members will be guests of Mrs. A. I. Mellenthin at her Lake Arrowhead summer home.

Rotary Ann's Impressions Of Rotary Convention

By DR. MARY E. WRIGHT

When Mrs. Guy Gilbert of 529 South Parton accompanied Mr. Gilbert to the great international convention of the Rotary club she anticipated pleasure and things instructive, and found all that, with many additional surprises.

Her first impression as they entered Convention Hall in Atlantic City was of the vastness of the building, which covers seven acres of ground space and which is the largest meeting place in the world.

One of the walls of the main assembly room was decorated by a miniature Niagara falls, and another by the Natural Caverns of Kentucky, both the falls and the stalactities of the caves formed by soap bubbles blown through large pipes.

Philadelphia Singers

The first entertainment provided for the host of guests was the concert on Sunday night, featuring the Madrigal Singers of Philadelphia, under the direction of Henry Hotz, and with eminent soloists. The orchestra was directed by Dr. Jeno Donath, musical director of Fox theaters in Philadelphia.

The House of Hospitality and Friendship, Mrs. Gilbert stated, was the scene of the greater number of events for the ladies. Here was the meeting place of the Rotary Anns from 70 different countries, with everything possible done to contribute to their comfort and pleasure.

Programs Translated

Special events were planned for them, given in the language of each of the nations who sent delegates, and junior amusements for the children who came with their parents were also provided.

The second impression registered in Mrs. Gilbert's mind was what a wonderful way Rotary had chosen to fulfill one of its greatest aims, the brotherhood of all nations.

On Monday, Atlantic City opened its great steel pier for the exclusive use of the Rotary guests. There are three theaters and a dance pavilion on the pier beside the many concessions, facilities for aquaplaning, and, as a special feature, diving horses with intrepid women riders who dived 40 feet into the water, Mrs. Gilbert recounted.

In the evening, all the hotels and buildings along the seven miles of boardwalk were spectacularly illuminated, and there was a splendid pyrotechnic display.

Cotton Styles Shown

Tuesday afternoon, a theater party and style show was provided for the ladies, showng garments made entirely of cotton and suited to all ages, and ranging from infants' wear to bridal gowns.

The greatest social event of the week took place Wednesday night, the president's ball, given in honor of the retiring president of Rotary and his wife.

Exquisite gowns and gorgeous jewels of the ladies and the men in their evening attire made a beautiful scene as the grand march started at 10:30 o'clock.

Enjoy Musicale

The following afternoon the ladies were entertained at a musicale in the assembly room of Convention hall. The prelude was played on the world's largest organ, followed by a harp ensemble with 10 eminent harpists conducted by Mrs. Dorothy Johnston Baselor of Philadelphia.

Edgar Allen, the noted baritone who made "The Great Waltz" famous, gave several selections, with Stuart Ross at the piano. Another interesting feature of the afternoon was a group of character sketches given by Cornelia Skinner.

Carnival on Ice

The third deep impression on Mrs. Gilbert's mind was the ability of Rotary to enlist so much of the world's finest talent to add to the pleasure of its guests.

On Thursday night, as a climax of the gay series of social events, an ice skating carnival was given in the stadium of the House of Hospitality, the floor of which had been prepared for the event. In the center of the floor, frozen in the ice, was the Rotary emblem, giving the correct touch to the setting.

The Rotary Anns were admitted to all convention metings, and it was there that Mrs. Gilbert received her fourth impression, an appreciation of the knowledge to be gained from the many fine lecturers presented on the program.

The travelers departed at 7 o'clock last night by train for the Northwest, and will sail from the Vancouver port, going first to Hawaii, where they will have a one-day stop. From the island, they will continue to Japan, with Kobe, Tokyo, and inland cities included in their itinerary.

Mary Stoddard

Better to Stay Single Than Marry a Man as Selfish, Inconsiderate as This One

By MARY STODDARD

Indifference sounds the death knell of love. A widow of 38 who writes us today knows what she should do, deep down in her heart, but she evidently wants a little moral support. She loves companionship and a social life. But she will never have either with the selfish bachelor with whom she finds herself in love. The sooner she gives him up and looks about for a more congenial friend the sooner she will find peace of mind and happiness.

Dear Miss Stoddard: I am a constant reader of your advice and have received much good from it. Now I bring my own problem to you and will appreciate a frank opinion:

I am a widow 38 years old and for the past three and one-half years have kept company with a nice man of 44. I am very much in love with him, having met him when he was broke and discouraged, having lost everything he ever had. He is a professional man and a gentleman.

We have much in common, our likes and dislikes being the same. We are fond of outdoor sports, dancing, as well as being domestic. I am a college woman and a teacher by profession.

This man tells me he loves me and we are very happy when together, but he never makes any plans for my pleasure. He spends his Sundays and other days off with his relations or men friends.

I have to entice him to attend a party with me and most always tells me he has planned to go somewhere else and can't go. I have overlooked this because I am so foolish about him.

Miss Stoddard, don't you think that if he really loved me he would want to be with me more than once in a week or so? I know I love to be with him and never tire of his company.

I do not look my age. I am good looking, attractive, keep myself nice, good natured, always see the bright side and laugh a lot. I have a sense of humor and am not easily offended. I love to do good things for others.

I am truthful and sincere and have been alone 14 years. I have two fine boys in high school and two boys in college in the south. I married when young and know very little of domestic happiness as my husband was twice my age and just lived to nag me.

I am very lonely now since my family is grown up. I have had very little time for a social life as I had to earn a living for my family. I do not drink or smoke and I don't care for those who do to excess. I am not prudish but a lover of the true and noble things in life.

Now, Miss Stoddard, shall I give this man up who is so indifferent to my happiness?

I believe there is somewhere in this world a man of education, refinement and good habits who would appreciate the love of a good woman.

If this doesn't sound too awfully silly coming from one of my age, I wish you would help me to decide, as I am very unhappy now. Thanking you I am sincerely,

M. C.

Alaska Trip Concluded Sunday

All the way to Skagway, Alaska, and back in 16 days with stops in many ports of call and an extra-two-day trip into the interior of the beautiful Alaskan country—that is the delightful journey just concluded by a group of Santa Anans who joined with travelers from other parts of Southern California in a cruise sponsored by the state Christian Endeavor Union.

Going from Santa Ana and Tustin were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert P. Rankin and son, Danny, and daughter, Patricia, of 2106 North Main street; Mrs. Mary Rowley of 202 East Tenth street, and Mrs. Margaret Suddaby of Tustin.

Going by special train to Seattle, the travelers there boarded a Canadian ship for Vancouver and there took the S. S. Prince Rupert for the trip north. Many interesting ports were visited by the ship, which was taking on a cargo mainly of paper; and on the way north the voyagers passed the famous Taku gladier, enjoying the thrill of seeing a large section of it crack off and slip down into the water as a result of the vibrations set up by the ship's whistle.

Among ports visited in Alaskan waters were Juneau, Ketchikan, Wrangell, Haines, and Skagway. From the latter town, where a two-day stop was made, a large majority of the people aboard, including the Santa Anans, took the Alaska and Yukon railway train up through a canyon over the White Horse trail followed by the early gold seekers. Landing at Carcross, a junction town, they took a boat up the Taku Arm, where they found some of the most beautiful scenery of the whole trip and had their first experience with the "midnight sun." The hour from 1:30 to 2:30 a. m. was the only hour of darkness on the overnight trip, they report, and it was possible to take pictures as late as 1:30 o'clock.

On this trip, they passed an inland glacier, the Mendenhall, which was receding, the boat going so close to it that they could look into its crystal-blue caves.

In Skagway, the party enjoyed a visit to Mother Pullen's house, a historic spot dating back to the gold-rush days.

Remedy For Prickly Heat Given

By C. N. CHRISMAN, M. D.

The advent of hot weather, bright sunlight, out-door life and free perspiration produces our greatest enjoyment. It also brings a number of discomforts that temper our ecstasy. One of the most inconsequential but very annoying of these is miliaria, or "prickly heat."

The chief cause of this trouble is free perspiration. It consists of a minute little pimple at the mouth of each sweat gland, followed by a little blister with a red inflamed area around it.

The condition is well named as it causes a prickling burning sensation that is almost unbearable. It occurs over the back and chest, in the arm pits and wherever the clothing fits tightly. It comes on suddenly after vigorous exercise, a hot bath or at any time with free perspiration, particularly before or after a rain when the air is filled with moisture.

The treatment, at first, is avoidance of anything external or internal causing perspiration. That is not as easy as it sounds. The diet should be bland, avoiding spices, stimulants, such as beer and whisky and an excessive amount of water. The clothing must be light and loose on the body. The wearing of silk next to the skin is very satisfactory. Frequent bathing in cool water is advised, avoiding the use of soap. Starch water can be used for cleansing. Immersion for ten minutes in a bath containing one pound of linit and a teaspoon of 25 per cent alcoholic solution of menthol gives prompt and lasting relief. Dusting powders containing one per cent of thymol, or calamine lotion containing phenol and menthol are good preventives. A lotion composed of carbolic acid, ½ dram, glycerine 1 ounce, alcohol, 1 ounce, added to four ounces of water produces quick relief.

Take Lazy Exercises In Summer

By JACQUELINE HUNT

This is dangerous weather. It isn't exactly a menace to your health or even to beauty, but it does things to your morale that can be truly distressing. For instance, you work hard all winter and spring to acquire a sylph-like figure, and then the hot weather comes along, you feel yourself getting lax.

Just make your daily exercises a part of your waking up and getting up routine in the morning before you have time to feel wilted and lazy.

When you wake up in the morning, try these grand stretching exercises before getting out of bed.

(1) Put your hands over your head and pull the upper part of the body upward from the waistline extending the heels and stretching your toes. Relax and repeat several times.

(2) With the arms still over your head, keep your hips firmly on the bed. Roll the shoulder and arms first over to the right side and then to the left without lifting the hips. Alternate four times to each side, then relax.

(3) This time keep your shoulders planted firmly on your mattress and roll the hips up and over first to the right and then to the left. Feel the stretch of the side muscles. This is also good for the abdominal muscles and back. Repeat four times in each direction.

We'll be kind and give you only one exercise to take after you step out of bed.

(4) Stand with your shoulders back, your abdominal muscles taut and your arms raised over your head, hands clasped. Raise the body upward and stretch your arms as far forward as you can. Relax and drop the trunk, arms and head downward from the waistline. Return to the first position and stretch upward and back. Repeat about five times.

(5) While you are in your shower, let the toes be squirming and bending under as though you were trying to pick up a pin. Roll the foot, shifting the weight from one side to the other and try raising slowly to your tiptoes and lowering the heels to the floor. These exercises help to keep the muscles of the feet and ankles in good condition.

Parties Give Child Social Graces

All children love parties, but what is more important, parties give the child a good part of the social training that he needs. A shy child gains confidence by helping his mother plan a party even to the menu and simple decorations. He enjoys the responsibility of seeing that his little guests are served and entertained.

The small child should have only the simplest kind of party, with perhaps a plain homemade cake and ice cream and only the members of the family or one or two small playmates as guests. But the child of five or six should be permitted to have friendly little parties frequently. The menus should be kept simple, but a regular two or three course luncheon or dinner might be planned occasionally.

A child of eight or nine can actually help with the preparation of the food for the party and help serve and garnish it. Let the child help arrange the table and flowers or other decorations. Use colorful paper tablecloths and napkins whenever possible. Paper plates and cups or gay pottery dishes are inexpensive and not easily broken and will please the children.

Little favors, nut cups or toy balloons bearing the child's name may serve as place cards.

KOOL KOOKERY

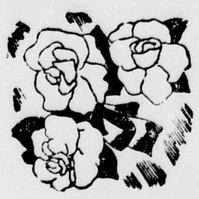

Dedicated to helping Santa Anans arrange cooling meals with a minimum effort and cooking, this column will present daily a recipe appropriate for hot-weather menus.

Mrs. Dale Elliott flicks together a fluffy orange sherbet to serve with ice box cookies on sultry evenings. She boils one cup of sugar and two cups of top milk together for a minute, pours it over a tablespoonful of gelatine and cools thoroughly.

When the mixture is no longer even tepid, she adds a cup of orange juice, juice of two lemons and grated rind of an orange, beats it well, allows to cool to mushiness and beats again before placing in refrigerator pans to freeze.

The second beating isn't necessary, but smooths the sherbet, she says. A touch of lemon juice with all fruit juice-flavored dishes is Mrs. Elliott's special way of counteracting sugary sweet tastes of such concoctions.

Tabby Is Rescued From Pole But Doesn't Say 'Thanks'

Tabby could climb up the pole—but she couldn't get down.

And it took the combined efforts of police, firemen, the poundmaster, and an Edison company crew to take care of the situation.

Hearing a plaintive mewing somewhere in the air near her home yesterday, Mrs. I. J. Weinbeck, 2066 Oak street, looked skyward. There, on top of a Pacific Electric power pole, was a cat, looking rather scared about the whole thing.

Mrs. Weinbeck called police. They came out and had a look around, then called Poundmaster H. D. Pickering. He couldn't quite reach it, so he called the fire department. A ladder truck was sent out, members of an Edison company crew manned it, and down came Tabby.

She didn't even say thanks.

Grain Market

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor

CHICAGO.—Corn became the grain market leader today, and soared in some cases to 4 cents a bushel overnight gain, the extreme permissible limit.

A flurry on the part of previous speculative sellers of July corn was an outstanding feature because of comparatively small supplies on hand and as a result of a renewal of unfavorable weather prospects. Iowa dispatches said the corn crop outlook was only yabout 50 per cent of what it was before damage was done by severe heat and drought.

Corn closed buoyant 2¾-4½c above yesterday's finish, July 91⅝c, September 88⅝-88⅞c, December 81½-81⅝c; wheat ⅛-⅜c up, September $1.03⅜-1.03⅝, December $1.04¼-1.04½; oats unchanged to ½c higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15 cents.

Saved by a Sense of Humor

THE REVOLUTION in Spain shows what happens when a nation divides up into two classes—aristocracy and common people—and each side tries to corner all the wealth and power. They've been fighting in Spain for years. And they'll keep it up until both sides are licked.

That's what George Washington was thinking about when he warned the United States against the "baneful effects of the Spirit of Party." Washington was the leading man in a successful revolution, and knew whereof he spoke.

Right now in the United States, there are some raucous politicians drunk on party spirit. For instance, the Rev. G. L. K. Smith of Louisiana, henchman of the late Huey Long, who bellowed at the Townsend convention:

"If I have to take a candidate put up by William Randolph Hearst to have a Republican party, then I say to hell with the Republican party.

"If I have to drink milk warmed in Tammany from a bottle with a nipple put on by James A. Farley, in order to be a Democrat, then I say to hell with the Democratic party.

"If Lemke forgets about the Townsend plan, then I know a country doctor and a Louisiana preacher who will chop his dadgummed head off."

It's fortunate that the average American has a 24-carat sense of humor. Otherwise he wouldn't be able to stand the rantings of demagogues like Brother Smith without going nutty and starting a revolution on his own. Like the Spanish.

As it is, we can all sit in the shade on the porch with a long, cool glass in our hands and give the ha-ha to these comic opera politicians and their deleriums. Viewed in the proper perspective they are really funny. After all, political parties are not nearly so important to American progress as politicians like to think. This country has had its good and bad administrations before. It has survived both kinds. And as long as it doesn't take the politicians too seriously—like the Spanish—it will, no doubt, continue to muddle along as the most prosperous nation the world has ever seen.

Alfalfa Landon hasn't accepted the G. O. P. nomination yet, but we are willing to bet that he will. It would be worth it just to get out of Topeka in the summertime.

Too Much—Even for Congress

THE STATE of Washington—which gave Zioncheck to a wondering world—now threatens to send the divorced wife of ex-Senator Dill to congress. Mrs. Dill is running "to vindicate herself and prove the judge was wrong" in her unsuccessful attempt to keep her husband from getting the divorce.

This platform takes the cake. We've heard of people trying to get votes by jumping off docks, wearing crazy clothes, shattering radio sets by meaningless speeches, and inventing new kinds of cocktails.

But if divorce "vindication" is to be accepted as a qualification for high public honor, some of the chronic divorcees in Hollywood's movie colony ought to be in the cabinet and on the supreme bench.

Poor old congress, which has long been the butt of ridicule and sarcasm because of its dumb and crazy members, needs no recruits from the divorce courts to keep up a reputation for asininity.

Headline: "Deported Gamblers Warned to Stay Out of Orange County." That's a good idea. There's not enough business to go around for the gamblers who are already here.

Let the Pickers Themselves Decide

ALTHOUGH representatives of growers and pickers have been huddling for a week, settlement of the strike seems to be getting nowhere fast. Apparently a few professional agitators are keeping the Mexican union recognition issue alive—even though most of the pickers themselves have indicated that they are satisfied with the new wage scale, transportation arrangements and other concessions.

Why wouldn't it be a smart idea for the growers to pass up these outside agitators and go direct to the pickers themselves for a settlement? It would be easy to call a mass meeting of all the Mexican colonies involved in the strike and let the men voice their wishes direct—instead of through trouble-making mouthpieces who have a financial stake in keeping the strike alive.

No doubt there are Britishers who will see in the attempted assassination of King Edward another step toward Americanization of England.

The Law Must Stop Traffic Murders

ORANGE COUNTY'S traffic death list for 1936 is a disgrace. Autos have killed 43 people so far this year. That is nearly 50 per cent more than were killed in the same period last year.

Judges and traffic authorities all agree that something drastic should be done about it. But who is in a better position to do it than they are? It's high time for the law to crack down on traffic violators who endanger life. That means lots of arrests and heavy penalties. It's the only course left open. Are the authorities going to take it? Or are they going to sit by and let the morgue fill up?

This is the season when small boys get tanned at the beach and tanned again when they get home for being late to supper.

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

Bugs Baer, like most accomplished after-dinner speakers, had no short cut to oratorical deftness. His first time out at an affair in Washington, D. C., his home town, was reputedly a blundering, blushing effort which narrowly escaped the raspberry.

Crownin-shield, Cobb and others so finished in forensics went through the same travail. Speakers are made, not born. Even Bryan was a dud in his trial efforts. Baer today may not be the floweriest but he is the fastest man on his banquet feet in New York. The trigger man!

His is a mind that sparks epigrams—those obvious whistler-like mots that make one wonder: "Why didn't I think of that?" Super-sensitive, Baer often sulks at the imagined grievance, and even close friends will suddenly receive a cool and aloof bow. But he quickly forgets.

The humorist is a man's man. He likes the crowds of the prize fight ring and wrestling arena. His grammatical fixation is "ain't." He will not abandon it. Like that other apostle of ain't, Will Rogers, he believes: "A lot of folks who ain't sayin' ain't ain't eatin'."

Beatrice Lillie always seems to me to express astonishingly her flowery last name. Tall, thin, chalk white, stem-like neck and apparently swaying ever so lightly in a vagrant breeze. As definitely as the Lunts, Miss Lillie is a vogue, a sort of cult, in New York. There are people who will begin to laugh as she opens her mouth and before a word has been uttered. At her first nights there is an annoying claque that will delay the performance for five or 10 minutes with an accolade no other performer in the cast will receive. Thus making her the No. 1 Show Stopper. To her worshippers, she is "Bee" and a target for a rare devotion that comes to few people of the stage. And destinctly box office, too, my dears!

The passing of the Sultan of Sulu recently recalls to the club lounge gossipers the visit of George Adé and John T. McCutcheon to that potentate on an outer fringe of the world some 20 years ago. And the play Ade wrote which bore the ruler's title and ran so many years. Not many newspapermen of his day—nor of this—traveled so extensively as Ade. There are few parts of the world he has not touched. There are still drinks named for the humorist in Singapore, Sumatra and many other far places. Reports are his biography which he is writing at his farm near Brook, Ind., is turning into the home stretch. It should be one of "the" travel books of the era.

* * *

Most of the gray heads, who like to remember-when over the vesperal hour highball, always have rollicking tales to tell of George Ade, Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson. They had a reckless fling to their youth that does not seem to exist today. Their capers smacked of genius. And each one settled down at the proper time to give literature more salt than perhaps any other three writers in America.

There used to be an 11 o'clock breakfast round-up for gentlemen of loose nights on the ivy clad verandah of the old Hotel Savoy on the avenue. It was called "The Mourner's Bench" and those soggy with penitence or taut with "second company" nerves would drift there for the revivifying perk of the cloudy absinthe drip, a specialty of the bar. There was an unwritten credo that no one was to moan about his headache or prattle the usual dolors of remorse. Charles B. Dillingham was president of the circle which was, inappropriately enough, called "The Morning Glories."

The most pathetic hang-over I ever be held was an American who dropped over a table in front of that famous 100-year-old tavern, Mere Catherine, in the leafy square of the Place du Terte in Montmarte three years ago. He had started to celebrate at noon the taking of a boat train for Cherbourg at 4 p. m. and here he was at noon the next day, alone, broke, befuddled. Three of us asked if we could be of service. "Not unless you can share my hang-over among you!" he moaned.

The Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON.—There is an interesting inside story behind the sudden yarn about spies in the navy. That is why the state department and even the naval higher-ups are not going to do much about it. The idea that our army and navy are honeycombed with spies is pure bunk..

Of course, there are one or two in the navy who really believe in the spy-honeycomb. Chief among them is Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, bearded ex-commander of the fleet. About one year ago Reeves' son was killed in an air crash, and there was muttering that the crash was caused by sabotage.

Ever since then Reeves has seen spies everywhere. He even issued an order prohibiting any officer or enlisted man on any ship from taking a camera aboard. The order was so grotesque that Washington wired to the west coast wanting to know if they had understood him correctly.

It is significant that when Reeves returned to the east coast (he is now with the navy general board in Washington) the spy scare cropped out here.

But that isn't the whole story.

* * *

KNEW FARNSWORTH

In the first place, the navy had known about former Lieutenant Commander John S. Farnsworth for some time, but never had worried about him. The things he did weren't considered important. He was something of a nervous and alcoholic case, as evinced by his insistent demand for a drink at the time he was arrested.

Most of the stuff he sold to the Japanese was so valueless that the Japanese were foolish to buy it. This included some information regarding a bombing sight which he himself developed, and which was pretty well known anyway; some old signals, which are changed every six months; and some "restricted" news letters which although marked "confidential," are merely press summaries prepared for officers who don't have time to read the papers. The Japanese could have got the same information from the daily press.

The most confidential thing Farnsworth is alleged to have sold was an out of date manual on ship maneuvering. And it is significant that this took place in May, one year ago, and the navy knew about it at the time.

Farnsworth also had tried to hire himself out as naval observer to various newspapers, and this was what proved his undoing.

A few weeks ago, a couple of newspapermen, working in cooperation with spy-minded navyites and G-Boss J. Edgar Hoover, decided to pump up the story. They had Farnsworth shadowed, but apparently got nothing damaging. For, when they preferred charges, they had to reach back to an incident of 14 months before.

When the story broke, spy-minded Captain W. D. Puleston, chief of naval intelligence, refused to give out information to other newspapers until 5:30 a. m., explaining that the navy had to give first break to "the exclusive author."

WHITE HOUSE PESTS

White Houes gardens for some reason have escaped the locusts this year, although maddening droves have settled over the suburbs of Washington.

Other pests also, including Japanese beetles, red spiders, and mealy bugs, usually exasperatingly present around the White House, have been absent.

White House gardeners have no explanation for it, except perhaps that this is an election year and the President has too many pests to bother with in the rest of the country.

* * *

TACTFUL HOSTESS

Mrs. Alf Landon, wife of the Republican presidential candidate, may be shy and self-effacing when it comes to politics, but to members of the Kansas legislature she is tops as a tactful hostess.

The governor had a luncheon conference for some of the boys, and being rugged trenchermen, they kidded Landon about the scantiness of his noon-day meal.

"What would you like to have?" he asked.

T-bone steak was the unanimous verdict. And a few days later they were asked around to the executive mansion again.

The steaks were plentiful, large, and luscious. The legislators pitched in with gusto.

But as all steak lovers know, the best part of a T-bone is right down next to the bone, and the best way to get at it is to pick up the bone. In Mrs. Landon's presence they hesitated to use this cave-man technique.

Noticing their hesitancy and the longing eyes they cast at their bones, she quietly picked up her bone and took a bite. With an almost audible whoop the guests followed suit, afterwards paid tribute to Mrs. Landon's tact.

LABOR LEADERS

John L. Lewis and Bill Green, heads of the two great rival labor factions, use widely different methods of dealing with the press.

The other day, Lewis remarked to newsmen that the United Mine Workers might suspend Green. He has been a member of the Mine Workers all his life, and on that basis is in the A. F. of L.

"He could join up as a fiddler—like Nero," concluded the miners' chief.

Later Bill Green held his press conference, was asked what union he planned to join if the miners put him out.

"You seem to be mighty worried about that," he barked. "You let me worry about it. Look at me! Do I look worried? Why of course I don't. And I'm not worried, either!"

"What instruments do you play, Mr. Green?" inquired another reporter.

"Instrument? Instrument?" yelled Green. "What do you mean, instrument?"

"Well, you know, Mr. Lewis says . . . "

"Never mind what Mr. Lewis says. I'm doing the talking. I'll think up all the wise-cracks around here."

* * *

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Robert M. Redmond, assistant White House gardener, says that in pestful previous years Japanese beetles got drunk on White House geranium juice and fell over in a faint. . . . Scribbled on the main hall of the Securities Exchange commission: "Zioncheck for President—they're all nuts anyhow." . . . The same steel corporations that so fiercely oppose the organization efforts of John L. Lewis, maintain cordial relations with him through their "captive mines." The miners are members of Lewis' union and have wage and hour contracts with the steel firms. . . . The drought has been a great publicity break for Rex Tugwell's Resettlement administration. Hundreds of pictures which the RA had taken of the ravages of erosion have now been fished from dusty files and rushed into print.

HEARST AND HIS PROF. HANEY

To the Editor: In Mr. Hearst's evening paper, Prof. Haney continues his misleading financial stuff daily. He claims to be a professor in Columbia university. If so, Heaven help us.

He has repeatedly stated that checks are promises to pay. But checks are not promises to pay, but orders to pay, and peremptory orders. They do not even say "please."

Of course, it makes little difference which word is used, but in the use Haney and Hearst make of words, it is of vast consequence. Orders to pay cannot be inflated, while promises to pay can be inflated.

Prof. Haney says that currency is a broader term than money and includes bank checks. This is absolutely not so, and he knows it. An order to pay money is not money or currency any more than a beer check is a glass of beer or a street car ticket a ride. That is the basis of much of the Hearst fallacy.

He say government credit is strained by reason of much borrowing. I invite his attention to the price of government bonds in any issue of his own paper.

Haney insists the banks are forced to buy government bonds. The last issue of bonds was oversubscribed seven times. Were the banks forced to subscribe seven times over for the bonds? Are the banks forced to maintain them at a premium after they have bought them? Are the banks prevented from selling them at a premium and so making a profit on their subscription? Are the insurance companies also forced to buy them? Am I forced to buy them?

Haney, Forbes and all Hearst writers are trying to give us the jitters. They conjure up all the terrible things that might happen to supply their daily need for jitters. They fear the debt can never be paid. They continually remind us that borrowed money must be repaid, they exaggerate the figures, they tried to get the bonus recipients to cash their bonds, in the hope that it might embarrass Roosevelt. They say the Roosevelt policies discourage saving, while on the same page of the paper the report of savings is positively amazing. They say he discourages business, while on the same page of the paper the report of increased dividends, new dividends, bond redemptions, etc., are quite unprecedented. They try to give the impression that Mr. Roosevelt is against business men, when he has made it as plain as possible that he aims only at the crook and the man trying to make money out of human misery. If Mr. Hearst wishes to classify himself with that class, he won't be far wrong. Between the patent medicine crook, the fake stock crook, and the man trying to sell papers charged with daily jitters, there is little difference—they all try to make money out of human misery.

When practically every bank in the country was insolvent, crying out for help, refusing to pay checks, Mr. Roosevelt stopped the export of gold immediately, insured deposits, took over and liquidated some 5000 banks, furnished others with capital in return for preferred stock (including Santa Ana banks). Now the bankers turn against him, along with Hearst.

When in March, 1933, all banks refused to pay checks, did they object to "regimentation"? They were much like England and France in 1916 when they cabled Washington, "For God's sake, come quick." But when they were safe they changed their tune. Yes, skunk is the proper word, if you dare print it. It is not nice, but the facts are not nice. Prof. Haney is qualifying for the position of skunk-in-chief. But, of course, his employer, Hearst, has that job by merit and election, self-anointed, with power to name his successor.

The fact is, behind many other facts, that Roosevelt is a gentleman, and Hearst is not. That makes an irrepressible conflict. They are opposed by nature and temperament. Hearst cannot understand a gentleman, and Roosevelt has no proper defense against such a person as Hearst.

One Man's Opinion

By Duncan Ellsworth Clark

EDITOR'S NOTE—Here is an informative, analytical daily feature on current topics. The opinions expressed in this column are not necessarily the same as those held by The Journal.

Protests Important in Party Convention

IN MANY ways the assemblage in Cleveland during these feverish days is more significant than that of either convention of the major political parties. Just as protest and opposition are usually more significant than agreement and acceptance. This follows the old saying that "It is better to know your own strength than it is to know your enemy's weakness." Uncertainty in political outcomes gives zest and interest to party maneuvers.

* * *

The Republican convention at Cleveland and the Democratic convention at Philadelphia were well-greased affairs. The result of the former was largely arranged in advance; the latter was wholly so. Stripped of their floods of oratory and hissing steam, the programs were monotonously similar. Everybody agreed to everything done. Heads nooded assent and hands clapped when the signals were given. "Prolonged applause," however feeble and forced at times, came on schedule. Platforms and candidates goose-stepped across the arena. The welkin rang with frenzied yelling, hats were crushed, collars wilted. The ether crackled, the folks back home took it all in, the delegates performed their routine duty, and a good time was had by all.

* * *

But this protest convention now sizzling in Cleveland is a real show. A herd of elephants may do a lot of trumpeting but they are still only a herd of elephants. And a bunch of donkeys may wriggle their ears and bray in concert buy they are still a bunch of donkeys. But when Townsendites, Huey Longers, Coughlinians, Lemkeists, and other unlabeled crusaders mingle in a three-ring circus there is a show worth seeing. What are a thousand Republican delegates and a half as many more Democratic delegates foregathered in convention compared to these 10,000 crusaders?

* * *

In this political year of 1936 the old party spokesmen are realizing, long after everybody else saw it, that a decisive political crisis is approaching. The traditional bromides and smoothing syrups have lost effect. Scores of millions of people goaded by hunger and burdened with fears, are rising in revolt. The old leadership is sadly discredited. When political charmers and industrial spoilsmen, commercial schemers and financial wizards plunged this great people into the abyss of depression they knew not the results of their folly.

* * *

The great truth emerges as always,—no people can safely resign its political and economic well-being into the hands of supermen or of any higher irresponsible power. Public servants must be closely watched lest they become our masters. The line between private interests and public concern is a rapidly diminishing line. The eternal vigilance is always the price of liberty.

Skinny Skribbles

Around and About Town

With C. F. (Skinny) SKIRVIN

One of the summer excursionists whom I know real well, and who selects the beach for that tired feeling, has returned to the homeland with a tan that would make father seem like a piker, and a case of ptomaine poisoning, not a part of a well planned vacation. It occasionally happens that you have to wait a year to get time off to accumulate in two weeks a lot of grief entirely foreign to the anticipated pleasure. Some of the best vacations are those spent within reach of the home table, and where cosmetics are available. But you will have difficulty convincing those who want to go places that essentials and necessities are not within reach wherever they go.

Ed Hagthrop took the family for a ride. He tried Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas where the temperature was 112 to 115, and finally decided that was a h . . . of a way to spend a vacation, so the next card was sent to his friend Carl Fisher from Manitou, Colorado, at the foot of Pike's Peak, where the temperature was 74. And they have spring water there, too, says Ed. About this time he would think of me, and sent a "Howdy."

Henry Calhoun stops long enough to discuss the proprieties of fashion, provoked by a pair of shorts he envisaged a few weeks ago. I promised not to let it happen again. Henry and I lived in a different age, an age of long underwear and almost as long bathing suits. Now it's a bandana handkerchief, a zipper and very little more. Shorts are becoming a regulation dress, and the public so accustomed to it that they hardly start a ripple any more. But let an old fossil with a crooked leg start down the street in a pair of "briefs" and he can get more attention and ridicule than a calliope in a symphony orchestra.

* * *

Last Friday was a hot day in Cheyenne. How do I know when I wasn't there? Well, Alex Brownridge, on his way to Scotland, sends me word that I should be there in my shorts. He said: "It's like that today." And that would naturally imply that someone had turned on the heat.

I am in favor of the rubber blades manufacturers are now putting in electric fans. Some people have the same curiosity about revolving blades that many people have about a sign reading: "Fresh Paint." They are unable to keep their fingers away from the paint. They want to prove it. So if the same curiosity should cause them to put their fingers in a revolving fan, it better be rubber, or a surgeon. Anyway, it's a great safety improvement.

Ed Cochems, middle of intersection Fourth and Main, with camera and wind-blown hair. Looked first in one direction, then another and I assume that he got what he was after—he usually does. Ed Yost's father is here from Colorado. He said he got off the train at Caliente, Nev., and it was the first time in his life that he ever saw the passengers get back on the train before the conductor yelled all aboard. Oh, well, Edith dear, don't tell Fred of my endearing reference, as it is so infrequent for me to speak thusly, but for the best and the worst of my family may I express both gratitude and surprise.
